Industry Is Using More Oil

Users Cite Mine Strikes As Major Reason for the Shift; More Convenient

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—Dr. W. H. Young of the U. S. bureau of mines reported today that industry's trend from coal to oil for fuel has speeded up since the war, with users citing mine strikes as a major reason for the shift.

The consumers give two principal reasons for changing over," he told a reporter. "One, it's more convenient and easier to handle petroleum, a fact which more than offsets the higher cost of oil. Two, consumers say they are tired of being tied up by strikes."

Mines bureau statistics for 1945 showed a decline in coal consumption in comparison with the use of other fuels—going back to a trend interrupted during the war when conversion to other fuels was restricted.

"We operate a canvass on a monthly basis of 12,000 large industrial plants," said Dr. Young, chief of the bureau's bituminous section.

"Every week we get two to half a dozen letters from manufacturers saying that they no longer consume coal and wish to be taken off the bituminous coal section lists. These are manufacturing plants, not two-by-four buildings and apartment houses.

Equipment Scarce

"This conversion to gas and oil began to occur a few weeks after Japan's surrender."

An official of the solid fuels administration said there is little likelihood of small factories and domestic consumers converting to oil in large numbers at present, simply because of inability to get equipment.

A bureau of mines study of the percentage of the total energy supply contributed by mineral fuels in the United States showed that in 1936, the coal percentage was 53.3 per cent. In 1940 it was 49.3 per cent. During the war years, coal came into heavier demand, and in 1942 contributed 52.7 percent.

The coal percentage declined from 53.3 percent in 1944, to 51.3 percent in 1945.

Percentages

The percentage contributed by oil increased from 29.6 percent in 1936 to 35.1 in 1938, declined to 28.2 in 1942, and rose to 30.7, in 1944 and 33.1 percent in 1945.

The contribution of natural gas increased from 10.2 percent in 1936 to 12.1 in 1945, then regressed somewhat during 1945 to 11.3 percent.

In terms of B. T. U. (British thermal units, or the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree fahrenheit), the annual supply of energy from coal increased from 12,989 trillions in 1936 to 16,576 trillions in 1945.

During the same period, energy from fuel oil increased from 6,792 trillions to 10,712 trillions, and natural gas from 2,330 to 3,662 trillions.

Meetings To Plan Housing

A series of meeting will be conducted for the purpose of furthering the housing program in Sedalia, according to an announcement made by Al Zurcher, new director in charge of housing.

The first meeting, to which all civic-minded Sedalians are invited, will be held at the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening, November 26, at 7:30 o'clock.

"It is my intention and belief that the outcome of these meetings will result, within the next few months, in the largest home building program Sedalia has ever known. It is my conviction that there is a way, and that together we will find the answers enabling us to do this" Mr. Zurcher said.

Anyone having any information concerning any phase of housing is particularly urged to attend, their contribution may pove valuable, Mr. Zucher stated persons desiring information are also asked to attend.

Says Shooting Of Ukrainians Is Deliberate

Foreign Minister Makes Formal Protest To Sec. Byrnes

By Max Harrelson

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 23—(AP)—Ukrainian Foreign Minister Dmitri Manuilsky today handed Secretary of State Byrnes a formal protest against what he said appeared to be a "premediated attempt" on the life of Gregory V. Stadnik, a member of the Ukrainian delegation to the United Nations.

Manuilsky previously had told newsmen that he considered the shooting, which took place in a midtown New York delicatessen Wednesday night, as a "political crime." The Russian press and radio also have attacked American authorities for failure to apprehend the assailants.

The protest was in the form of a long letter, which informed quarters said reviewed the shooting incident and called on Byrnes to "bring to justice" those responsible for the shooting.

These quarters said Manuilsky expressed doubt that the incident was a simple robbery, as maintained by New York police, and asked that the secretary of state make sure that the case was given urgent investigation.

Demands Information

He was quoted as demanding that Byrnes inform him "about the measures that have been taken."

Manuilsky described the circumstances in which the shooting took place, when Stadnik along with another Ukrainian adviser, A. D. Voina, entered a delicatessen late Wednesday night and said he had come to the conclusion that this "is not simple robbery."

Previously, Manuilsky, had told reporters that he considered it a "political crime." He declared in his letter that the shooting appeared to be "a premediated attempt" on the life of the two Ukrainians."

Two points were cited in the letter to bear out this conclusion:

1. The shooting took place in a store, near the Hotel Plaza where Stadnik and Voina usually went at the same hour each day to buy fruit.

2. No attempt was made to rob the Ukrainians.

Manuilsky also said it was difficult to see why such a small store should have been the object of a robbery.

Invalid For Life

Manuilsky also told Byrnes that he had visited Stadnik at the Roosevelt hospital and that doctors there said he must remain in the hospital for three months and that he would remain an invalid for life. Voina was not injured in the shooting.

Meanwhile, Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander of New York reiterated his belief that the whole affair merely resulted from "a stickup" and said nothing had yet come to light to indicate a political motive."

Stadnik was shot in the right thigh but hospital officials said his condition was not serious.

Stadnik and his colleague entered the store just as it was being held up by two men. When the Ukrainians were slow in obeying an order to line up against a counter, police said, one of the robbers shot him. The holdup netted $150.

Forget-Me-Not Symbol Of Need

As a symbol of the need of the handicapped veterans the tiny unpretentious little flower, the For-Get-Me-Not, has been chosen by the Disabled American Veterans organization to remind the people of our nation of the sacrifices that have been made by these men.

Saturday, November 30, has been set aside as the day when these little flowers will be sold in the downtown district of Sedalia. The funds will be used for disabled veterans and as an inspiration and encouragement will serve as a reminder that they have not been forgotten.

The sale will be under the sponsorship of the local chapter of the Disabled American Veterans organization, of which Fred Morley is commander and Gus Witte is financial secretary. Mrs. Fred Morley will be in charge of the sale.

Pleasant Day Is Forecast

Mild temperatures and partly cloudy skies promise a pleasant Sunday for Kansas and Missouri, with no precipitation expected before the possible arrival of a storm front late Monday or Tuesday.

Temperatures should range in the 60's over both states today (Sunday), the weather bureau said.

Yesterday's fair weather produced a low of 28 and a high of 66, both at Garden City, in Kansas, while in Missouri the minimum was 26 at West Plains and the maximum 62 at Clinton, St. Louis and Columbia.

Youth Admits Three Killings

ROCKVILLE, Md., Nov. 23—(AP) Fourteen-year-old Robert Snyder told police tonight he had shot and killed his foster parents and younger sister during a family argument and then attended a movie before surrendering himself.

Investigating his story, police found the bodies of Ross Snyder, 50, Washington tax attorney, Mrs. Snyder, 45, and Jane Ann Snyder, 12, in the kitchen of the Snyder farm home. Each had been shot in the head with a shotgun.

Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery county medical examiner, said the three were killed at about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

He said the boy related that he had been out until early this morning, was reprimanded for coming in late and that the argument continued this morning. He quoted the boy as saying he shot the three with a shotgun, then attended a movie in Washington.

Advised To Give Up

Dr. Broschart said the boy then called a friend who advised him to give himself up to police. Early in the evening Robert walked into the police station at Bethesda, Md., a few miles from Rockville and a Washington suburb.

Bethesda police turned the boy over to Rockville police who went immediately to the Snyder home.

There, Dr. Broschart said, the bodies were found on the kitchen floor. On a nearby table was the family's uneaten luncheon.

The medical examiner told reporters it was possible the three had been wounded first and then shot in the head. He said he was making a complete examination on this point.

Friends of the family said Robert and his sister had been adopted as infants by Mr. and Mrs. Snyder.

Coal Strike Changes Plans GOP Leaders

Will Carefully Consider All Regulations

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—Republican plans to sweep away wartime powers of the President and end many government controls appeared today to have been altered radically, due in large part to the coal strike.

Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, named by the senate GOP steering committee to recommend action on terminating war controls, told a reporter that if he has his way a careful study will be made before his party decides which regulations it wants to chop off immediately and which it wants to keep a while.

As an example, Wiley noted that any resolution to declare hostilities at an end would automatically repeal six months later the Smith-Connally plant seizure act under which the government is proceeding in its battle with John L. Lewis.

Will Keep Books

He said there obviously are other wartime measures that the Republicans will want to keep on the books for a while at least.

His study of more than 500 pieces of wartime legislation has brought him to at least one conclusion. Wiley said he probably will recommend legislation placing rent controls under state jurisdiction.

"I think that is a matter where only local agencies can do equity to the landlords and the renters," he remarked. "I have contended all along that there is authority in the law for the local adjustment of rents on an equitable basis, but the OPA has insisted on a freeze."

Agreeing that the Republicans must go slowly, Senator Ball (R-Minn) said he thinks it will take several weeks to determine which controls should be repealed and which should be retained temporarily.

During the campaign, many Republican speakers promised that if their party was given control of congress, it would wipe out the controls in jig time. But OPA already has lopped off most of its regulations.

State Guard Expects Alert

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 23.—(AP)—A source in position to know reported tonight that the Virginia State Guard probably would be alerted within the next 24 hours in connection with the soft coal strike.

Governor William M. Tuck would not confirm the report, but he has stated several times that protection would be afforded all miners in Virginia who wished to continue working.

Understands What Losing an Election Means Says Democrat

By Arthur Edson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—The Democrats now understand what it means to lose an election, Rep. Wickersham (D-Okla) said today.

"I just noticed my guest tickets for the Army-Navy game," said Wickersham sadly. "They're in the end zone."

Wickersham told a reporter the tickets he got for his personal use are all right.

"But the four tickets they gave us for our guests are sorry as all get-out," he added.

"They're sure treating us pore old Democrats mean right off. Why, these tickets aren't even within shootin' distance.

"It used to be we could count on eight good seats, right on the 50-yardline."

Wickersham said that for a time he supposed he had received end zone seats because he was licked in the primaries.

"But my secretary got to comparing notes—you can't fool these secretaries—and found Democrats all down the line had the same story," he said. "We're just end zone material now."

Other Comment

And what did the Army have to say about this?

Col. John Pitchford, who has the chore of putting congressmen in their places, commented that each of them gets four good seats (two of them free) and four for guests—in the end zone.

"I send up an alphabetical list," he said. "It doesn't say anything about politics. The people who mail out the tickets don't know—or care."

And now, shall we have a word from a Republican?

"I guess we Republicans toss a little more weight around here now," said happy, hefty Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio. And then he peeked at his guest tickets.

"What do you know?" he cried. "I'm in the end zone, too.

Rescue Squad Crawled To Plane Victims

Abandon Hope For Their Removal Until Morning

MERIRINGEN, Switzerland, Nov. 23—(AP)—A 60-man rescue squad today crawled to 11 Americans whose U. S. Army transport plane crashed on a glacier high in the Alps, but Swiss military sources said the squad had abandoned efforts to start removal of the passengers from their icy shelf until tomorrow morning.

That meant that the passengers including four women and a 11-year-old-girl, must spend a fifth night on the 8,000 fot high glacier. Doctors were in the escue party, however, and supplies have been dropped to ease the plight of the injured.

The Swiss authorities said that it had been planned to take some of the passengers down to a half-way hut used by skiers as a shelter, but this was called off as darkness enveloped the scene.

Radio communication with the plane was ineffectual and there was no way in which authorities at Meiringen could learn the condition of the passengers. Previous reports had said eight were stretcher cases.

Dropping Radio Equipment

The Swiss announcement said radio equipment would be dropped at the scene tonight and that two Fieseler-Storch planes, of German-make and similar to American artillery observation planes, might be landed near the glacier camp if the physical condition of the injured make such a hazardous operation necessary.

The rescuers reached the scene of last Tuesday's crash after ploughing for hours through heavy dirfts, exploring carefully for deep crevasses hidden under deceiving expanses of new snow.

Brig. Gen. Ralph Tate, deputy commanding general of U. S. forces in Austria, said that his son, Capt. Ralph Tate, Jr., the pilot of the plane, had advised him that all had survived the ordeal of four freezing nights. Mrs. Tate, wife of the general and mother of the pilot, was also a passenger.

Little Information

"We don't know how many are injured or how seriously," General Tate said, "but in any event we can't expect any of them down here before tomorrow.

After they are brought to Meiringen they will be placed on a special two-coach train and "we hope that they will be taken to an Army hospital in Munich," he said. "They have been up there more than five days now and undoubtedly are suffering from shock and exposure."

Directing the operations for the U. S. Army is Brig. Gen. Ralph Snavely, whose wife is also among the plane passengers.

The transport plane is resting about 100 feet from the highest range of the Gauli glacier, in a pocket three miles southeast of the 12,149-foot Wetternhorn and 15 miles northeast of the mighty 13,-670 foot Jungfrau.

Passengers Waved

Today was clear and sunny, and pilots of planes circling the spot said some of the passengers were seen sunning themselves.

Other pilots who flew over the scene reported that a fire had been started by the passengers near the door of the plane. They said the plane did not appear to have been smashed, and its wingtip and fuselage were clearly visible. It had apparently pancaked on the ice. Two or three of the passengers waved at the planes overhead.

Fatally Hurt

William Joe Collins, 13, son of Mrs. Blanche Harned Collins, who died at the Bothwell hospital Saturday night of injuries suffered in the afternoon when a gun was accidently discharged while he was hunting near Warsaw.

Billy Collins Fatally Hurt, Gun Explodes

Was Hunting Near Warsaw With His Sister and Friends

William Joe Collins, 13 year old son of Mrs. Blanche Collins, 1302 East Ninth street, who was fatally injured at about one o'clock Saturday afternoon when he was accidently struck in the right side by the discharge of a single barrel twelve gauage shot gun, died shortly after ten o'clock Saturday night at the Bothwell hospital. He attended Smith-Cotton junior-senior high school and was in the eighth grade.

The boy was duck hunting with his sister, Betty Collins, 22, and Beverly, 17, and John Neal Rose, 15, sons of John Rose, 1400 East Fourteenth street, approximately five or six miles east of Warsaw, near a slough extending from the Lake of the Ozarks.

John Rose and the Collins boy, both of whom had been out on the slough in a rowboat, beached the boat and went up to the cabin, owned by a Mr. Hart, situated on a hill about thirty yards from the water. Rose began to prepare some coffee and Collins returned to the boat.

Heard Explosion

Beverly Rose, who was in a duck "blind" across the slough from the cabin, said that he heard the explosion of a gun and thinking that the other boys had sighted some ducks, rose and looked out across the slough. He said that he saw the collins boy crumpled over the prow of the rowboat.

John Rose said he heard the gun go off and seeing that Collins was hurt, ran down to the beach. Collins was able to walk a few yards with support but Rose had to carry him the rest of the way and on into the cabin where he laid him on a bunk.

Rose got into his father's car, which the boys were using and drove up the road to where Mr. Hart lived, about 300 yards from the cabin. Hart took the car and, accompanied by Rose, returned to the cabin where they picked the boy up and drove him to Warsaw.

Brought to Hospital

Reser's ambulance, of Warsaw, brought the boy to the Bothwell hospital where he was attended by doctors, J. M. Rodeman, M. P. Shy and F. B. Long. The discharge of the gun struck the boy in the right side, injuring the liver and the kidneys and breaking four ribs.

The two Rose boys said that Collins must have taken hold of the gun with the barrel pointing towards him, and evidently the hammer, catching on the seat of the boat, was released when he lifted the gun and it accidently discharged.

The boy's father, William Collins, member of the fire department, was burned to death nine years ago last July in a fire at Bard's Jewelery Store, formerly located at 312 South Ohio avenue.

Survivors

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Blanche Collins, 1302 East Ninth street; three sisters; Betty Collins, of the home, Mrs. Louis Travers, Stephenson, Va., Mrs. Hubert Stone, Gentry, Ark.; a brother, Eugene Collins, Detroit, Mich.; a grandmother, Mrs. Sally Collins, Sedalia; Leo Job Harned and Clay Harned, both of Sedalia, are uncles.

The body is at the Gillespie Funeral Home. Funeral arrengements are pending.

Dr. K. L. Holdren, coroner, said late Saturday night that there would be no need for an inquest.

Government Urges Drastic Rationing By All Communities

Urge Everyone To Conserve Gas And Lights

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 22—(AP)—Traffic Patrolman J. Ned Fanning today made such a face at a woman traffic violator that he threw his jaw out of joint. Here's his version:

"A woman tried to make a forbidden left turn, so I whistled at her and she made an awful face at me.

"She didn't stop, so I made a face right back at her. I must have put too much into it for I threw my jaw out of joint."

In a whisper, he added, "from now on I'll stick to whistling."

Sedaia Unit Of Navy Club Is Organized

Charter Will Be Held Open For Reasonable Time

The Sedalia Unit of the Navy Club of America was organized last night at a meeting in the former Officers' club at the Bothwell Hotel at 8 o'clock. Temporary officers were elected at this meeting. The charter will be held open for a reasonable time so that those who wish to enter now may do so as a charter member.

The National Shipwriter attended the meeting and gave the organizers a helping hand. Thus far Kansas City is the only city in Missouri which has an organized Navy Unit. Louisiana, Mr., is expected to have its club organized soon. This club covers nearly every state in the union.

Any person who has served, in the navy or any branches of the navy such as the Coast Guard, and the reserves, under honorable conditions is eligible to membership. The Wowens auxiliary is another branch that is accepted.

Purposes of Club

The purposes of the club are:

1. To further encourage, promote and maintain comradship among those persons who are, or have been in the active service of the United States Navy and its branches.

2. To revere, honor and perpetuate the memory of the departed shipmates.

3. To promote and encourage further public interest in the Navy and its history.

4. To uphold the spirit and ideals of the Navy.

5. To give the vast body of the "alumni" of the Navy the opportunity to become more vocal and united on matters that concern the defense and security of our Nation.

Promote American Ideals

6. To promote the ideals of American freedom an democracy and to fit members for the duties of citizenship and to encourage them to serve as ably as citizens as they have and our serving the Nation under arms.

7. To maintain true allegiance to our American institution.

This is the only National Service Organization exclusively for all Navy Personnel. The organization was incorporated by an act of Congress in 1940.

An announcement will be made concerning the time and place of the next meeting, as no definite place has been named as their "ship".

Stole For Her GI Husband

MOBERLY, Mo., Nov. 23—(AP)—Raymond Falzone, prosecuting attorney said today the young wife of a former sailor had signed a statement admitting the theft of $3,000 in jewelry to get money to help her husband, broke in Chicago because he had not received his government subsitence check.

Falzone identified her as Mrs. Robert Brown, 22, and said she had been charged with grand larceny. Mrs. Brown waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to circuit court. Bond was set at $1,000.

The girl had obtained a job at a local jewelry store last week. Police recovered all the valuables including a $1,075 diamond ring left as security on a $200 loan at a local bank.

Falzone quoted her as saying she was trying to get money to send her husband attending a draftsman schol in Chicago under the GI bill of rights.

Warn Soft Coal Stock Low; Lewis Gives No Sign of Ordering Miners Back to Work

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—"Drastic" coal rationing by local communities was urged by the government tonight while President Truman, back from Florida, conferred with three cabinet members on possible further moves to end the strike.

The dimout order does not at the present time affect Sedalia, H. C. Feuers manager of the Missouri Public Service Corporation stated Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small appealed to the public to save coal.

"I urge every member of a household which burns gas and electricity to exercise the greatest economy in their use, for only with such cooperation will disastrous discontinuance of services in many areas be avoided," his statement said. "I urge, too, the conscientious voluntary compliance by business establishments with the terms of the orders CPA issued yesterday, and I ask for the assistance of states and municipalities in carrying out the necessary provisions.

"The turning off of one gas burner or light bulb is a little thing in itself, but if it is done in millions of homes and stores and office buildings, the cumulative saving is very great indeed.

"The country is faced with a crisis far more serious than the situation created by the coal strike last spring."

Secretary of the Interior Krug telegraphed all 48 governors a warning that emergency soft coal supplies are slim and suggesting that local communities plan now for closing amusement places and even schools and extending the dimout if their stocks run low.

John L. Lewis still gave no sign of ordering the 400,000 bituminous miners back to work. And A. Philip Randolph, President of the AFL brotherhood of sleeping car porters, told a New York meeting that "it may come to the point where it will be necessary for organized labor to back the United Mine Workes with a general strike." The AFL Sailors Union of the Pacific already has pledged "full physical and financial support" to Lewis' union.

Already Hit Steel

Already the strike which became virtually total on Wednesday had bitten into steel production. Four of the biggest steelmakers shut down 87 blast and open heart furnaces to save fuel.

Mr. Truman, returning in mid-afternoon from a week's vacation at Key West, Fla., conferred immediately with Krug, Attorney General Clark and Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach as well as other advisors. Krug and Clark have been the field generals for the finish fight the President ordered against Lewis. Schwellenbach hitherto has not had an active role in the situation.

The conference lasted an hour an 20 minutes. Press Secretary Charles G. Ross reported that Mr. Truman got a "detailed report on the whole coal situation" but declined to say specifically what had been discussed. Secretary of Commerce Harriman also was invited to the session but was in New York.

Lawyers At Work

At the justice department, attorneys worked on the legal arguments they will present to Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough on Monday in connection with the contempt citation against Lewis. Attorneys for Lewis also were busy at their headquarters.

Mr. Truman told reporters at

Drew Pearson Says:
Secretary Byrnes Blocks Investigation of Germany; Brewster Wants to Probe Wall Street Links With Nazi Cartels; Byrnes Tries to Plug Leaks to Pearson.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—For some strange reason, Secretary of State Byrnes has become awfully jittery about having a senate committee probe what's going on in Germany. He is putting all sorts of obstacles in the path of the old Truman committee's investigation of the reported breakdown of American morale in Germany and the secret flirtation of some United States business firms with Nazi cartels.

Several members of the old Truman committee, now the Kilgore committee, flew to New York for a session with Jimmie Byrnes regarding this, but he remained adamant. Behind him sat G. O. P. leader Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, smoking a cigth, quietly giving republican support.

Significantly, the senators who interviewed Byrnes were all republicans: Brewster of Maine, who will soon be the new G. O. P. committee chairman; Ferguson of Michigan, smoking a cigar, quietly erated with the democrats; and Knowland of California, who recently defeated Will Rogers. Tom Connally of Texas, an inactive member of the committee since the various peace conferences, was also present. Senator Brewster carried the ball.

"When Claude Pepper gets up on the floor to criticise your policy with Russia, we are the ones who pin back his ears," Brewster told Byrnes, referring to his colleague, the Senator from Florida. "But an investigation of what goes on in Germany is not deserting our non-partisan foreign policy. After all, it was Harry Truman who sent both republican and democrat senators abroad to probe various phases of the Roosevelt administration all during the war."

Byrnes Says No

Secretary Byrnes countered by suggesting that Lieut. Gen. Lucius Clay and other officials in Germany could come to the United States and be examined by the committee.

"We've always found it more efficient to examine people on the ground," countered Senator Ferguson.

Byrnes, however, stuck by his guns. He was absolutely opposed to a senate committee's going to Germany. This caused Senator Knowland to remark:

"I was not particularly interested in the reported sexual aberations of American troops in Germany or of black market porch-climbing until I found you were so anxious to keep us out. But since there have been several carefully conducted tours of newspaper men through Germany, I see no reason why United States senators should not have the same privilege."

Knowland, whose family operate an Oakland ,Cal., newspaper, hinted that he did not think his colleagues of the press had been permitted to see anything in Germany, except what the army wanted them to see.

Finally Brewster brought up one of the most disturbing situations in Germany, the rumor that Secretary of the Navy Forrestal's old banking firm, Dillon-Read has had its officials working in Germany to arrange tieups with Nazi Cartels. Before the war, links between I. G. Farben and United States companies caused serious damage to American defense.

"As you know," the senator from Maine reminded Byrnes, "the charges are that Dillon-Read was a very great factor in Germany in the 1920's, that General Draper, former vice president of Dillon-Read, is similarly identified, and that the connections and operations are the subject of bitter attack from out left-wing friends."

Byrnes Complains of Pearson

Brewster was referring to Gen. William H. Draper, former Wall street partner of Secretary Forestal, now head of the economic division of the Ameican military government in Germany.

"I know nothing about these matters," replied Byrnes. "I did not know that Dillon-Read had been mentioned before in connection with them at all. I haven't heard any rumors tabout it."

He went on to say that even if the senators held closed-door sessions in Germany, their findings were sure to leak out.

"I can't keep anything secret in the state department," he complained. "I can bring in the F. B. I. to try to find out where the leaks come from. I have done it. I have had Drew Pearson send me word that he knows I am investigating him and that I am on the wrong track. He even knows if you try to find out where he gets the information.

"I think all of you have had that experience," continued the secretary of state. "You know that next Sunday night he will have the fact that we had this meeting here. I will be surprised if he waits until then. He will know it. You can't stop it."

Both Vandenberg and Connally stuck by their friend, the secretary of state, contending that a senate investigation in Germany would make us look bad in the eyes of the Russians. Final decision is now up to the full senate war investigating committee.

Natural Gas Vs. John L. Lewis

It has now been more than a year since this column suggested that the only way to counteract John L. Lewis was to convert our two war-built, government-owned pipelines to natural gas. In the interim not a single move toward conversion has been made.

In the interim, also, millions of cubic feet of Texas and Louisiana natural gas have gone up in smoke and will never be recovered. Most people don't realize that this is one of our most valuable natural resources. Nevertheless, much of it is either burned up in Texas as waste gas, or allowed to escape. At some Texas oil wells, a constant blaze is kept going, night and day, in order to burn off surplus gas.

The reason for the government's failure to convert the big inch and little inch pipelines to gas is not entirely red tape, nor the secret opposition of John L. Lewis. Vigorously pulling wires to keep the pipelines away from natural gas are the railroads and the coal operators. They are Lewis' secret allies.

Illustrative of this wire pulling is a natural gas pipeline only ten miles from Washington, D. C., which brings gas from West Virginia. Originally constructed to feed the nation's capital, the coal industry and the railroads blocked the entrance of natural gas into Washington. They were bringing in coal which the company then converted into expensive artificial gas.

So for ten years West Virginia natural gas flowed to within sight of the nation's capital but was never permitted to come into the city. Only during the war was this finally changed. Now the West Virginia pipeline has been tapped, and Washington, at long last, is using cheap natural gas.

Note: Charming, naive Stuart Symington, when surplus property administrator, sent a report to congress that the government pipelines could only be used for oil—not natural gas. Now he claims he never saw this report, that somebody signed it for him. Now that Stuart is assistant secretary of war, wonder if orders for the shipment of atomic bonds are signed the same way?

Secretary of War Urges Complete World Disarmament, From Atom to Small Arms

By Peter Edson
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, — A complete world disarmament beyond requirements of the United Nations police force was recommended today by U. S. Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson in an exclusive interview with NEA Service.

Even small arms — shoulder weapons and machine guns which have been excluded from most disarmament plans in the past — would be subject to limitation under Secretary Patterson's proposal.

This is the most drastic scheme for eventual world disarmament yet put forward by any responsible official of any government.

Patterson endorsed the original disarmament proposals made by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and the U. S. delegate to the United Nations, Sen. Warren R. Austni. Then Patterson went them all one better.

"If we disarm to cut out atomic bombs and heavy bombers, we must also cut out all other weapons."

Asserting that most of the disarmament ideas advanced so far have sought to end mass destruction and the wanton killing of civilian populations by bombing, Patterson pointed out that Hitler did most of his mass destruction of civilians without the use of these heavy weapons.

To gain his world reputation as the greatest killer of all times, Hitler used machine guns and small arms and gas chambers to wipe out whole populations. And in his concentration camps he used no weapons at all — just simple starvation.

"All Across the Board"

"What Hitler proved," said the Secretary of War, "was that huge armies can do as much killing as bombers. Prohibiting the use of the atomic bomb is only one phase of disarmament. There must be disarmament all across the board."

In this connection the Secretary asserted it is useless to work on the formula that a battleship shall be considered the equivalent of a land army, or that so many foot soldiers shall be considered the equal of one bomber.

In the Washington Arms Conferences of the 1920's, an effort was made to distinguish between "offensive" and "defensive" weapons. Only the so-called offensive weapons were to be banned. Secretary Patterson decried this distinction.

While the United States has many heavy weapons today, it is really only a second rate power. Other nations have much larger armed forces. Putting a ban on heavy weapons only would therefore mean that other armies could get their guns on their shoulders and march into action much faster than the United States could get back into production of offensive heavy weapons. Experience in the last war proved this to be true.

Admitting that sweeping disarmament holds certain risks for the United States, Patterson nevertheless believed these risks must be taken. Complete trust must be put in the United Nations organization to maintain peace, he said. And he thinks the world can readily reduce its armaments and armies to the ceilings set to maintain the United Nations security forces.

There are two theories as to how this United Nations force shall be organized: (1) That every nation's entire armed force shall be committed to the United Nations; (2) That only specified forces shall be assigned to U. N., the un-assigned forces being retained by each country as a defensive reserve.

However they are made up, to preserve the peace and security of the world Patterson advocates assigning to the U. N. forces the right to maintain heavy weapons of offensive warfare. This may at first seem inconsistent with his broader disarmament proposal. But the secretary explains that when this United Nations task force goes into action, it must have a superior strength and be prepared to defeat any aggresser —a resurgent Germany or Japan, or a smaller nation. This means the United Nations force must have the right to use capital ships, bombers and the atomic bomb.

Three Principles

How this U. N. force is to be organized is now under consideration. The military staff committee of the U. N. Security Council has been meeting since last April, without accomplishment. The stalemate has been due to the failure of the Russians to present or discuss any concrete plan of operation. Their excuse has been that they have no instructions from Moscow.

Until the United Nations can perfect its plans for a world police force, no proposal for disarmament can be considered, Patterson stated. When that first step is taken, he said, then real disarmament can be achieved on the basis of three principles:

1. There must be universal and not unilateral disarmament, as Senator Austin specified. The United States tried to lead the way by unilateral disarmament after the last war and suffered for it.

Actually, the United States has gone farther in its disarmament since V-J day, than any other power. In the calendar year 1945 the U. S. spent $70,000,000,000 for armaments. This year it is spending $20,000,000,000. The cut is 71 per cent. This contrasts with a cut of only 54 per cent by the U. S. S. R.

2. There must be a world wide system of inspection of armed forces, since no nation trusts any other.

When disarmament comes, it must be made in good faith. Any disarmament agreement entered in bad faith can be broken. This time there must be no youth clubs labor battalions or glider clubs for the concealed training of pilots, as Germany had even before Hitler came into power. Adequate arms inspection for the future is the only way to stop that.

3. Disarmament must apply to all categories of armed forces — army, navy and air — above the limits of the United Nations contingents.

This involves working out many details, Patterson frankly admitted. He believed that limitation cannot be made on a budget basis, owing to the different standards of living in different parts of the world. Pay of all other armies is far below U. S. levels.

Limitation of military research must also be considered. Most civilian, scientific research has military applications, but it would be impossible to ban all research. It might, however, be possible to limit research of military application to a percentage of the budget allowed each nation for its internal defense forces.

The question of military bases — their number, location and maintenance — must also be worked out by the United Nations. In the last war the United States took responsibility for defense of the Caribbean, while the British took responsibility for the Indian ocean. Similar divisions of responsibility for maintaining peace would therefore seem feasible.

Patterson was frank to say that complete disarmament such as he envisaged may be a long time off. In the present state of the world Allied occupation forces must remain in Japan and Germany for some years. Until United Nations forces can be created to take over the zones of occupation, of until all Allied armies of occupation can be withdrawn and the ex-Axis countries admitted to full membership in the United Nations, there can be no sweeping disarmament, he said.

Patterson's Scheme is Most Drastic Yet Voiced by Any Official in World

Secretary of War Patterson: In his plan for disarmament all weapons must be discarded, from the atom bomb and heavy bombers to machine guns like the one he's shown firing in an Army demonstration.

Government Urges Drastic Rationing By All Communities

the airport here that he plans week-end conferences on the coal strike. He had no further comment, however, except to say that he had a good rest and is feeling fine."

Krug, tightening the freeze of bituminous supplies ordered in advance of the walkout, disclosed that it had netted less than two days' normal production for emergency distribution beyond the supplies then held by dealers and on docks.

Small Emergency Stock

"This critically small emergency stock," he telegraphed the governors, "makes it imperative that you, by proclamation or other means, notify the communities of your state that these supplies will soon be exhausted unless the most proudent and drastic rationing is applied by the communities themselves.

"Each community should determine what activities should be given preference and what curtailed so that the health and general welfare of the community may be best maintained. The community should determine whether available coal stocks should be conserved by dimouts, closing or restricting amusement places, closure of schools, curtailment of power for industrial purposes or whether in its opinion coal stocks available in the community are sufficient to justify no action.

Situation Serious

"I cannot overemphasize the seriousness of this situation. I suggest that you ask the governing authorities in the communities of your state either to act as an emergency agency or create one or more committees to so act. I suggest that you might then set up for the state a fuel conservaion or fuel conservation committee to whom such local committees could turn for advice and help.

"Will you advise me whether you decide to make appointment of a state fuel conservator or equivalent official. If so, please advise his name, title and address."

In two supplements to the previous freeze order, Krug barred railroads from taking over coal in tansit and notified any shippers whose mines are operating to ship coal only on government orders for emergency users.

He issued a warning to "all industrial and domestic consumers" saying that "only by the strictest saving can widespread suffering and collapse of essential public services be averted."

Truman Sends Taylor Back To Vatican

For Important Discussions; New Embassy in Iran

By D. Harold Oliver

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—President Truman sent Myron C. Taylor back to the Vatican for important new peace discussions and bolstered American diplomatic representation in the troubled Middle East today in twin moves of far-reaching significance.

Taylor left by plane last night for Paris for the first leg of his journey. A White House announcement was issued today, saying that Mr. Truman had directed him to "continue his mission in behalf of peace."

The statement said Taylor's new mission will be "of short duration, not exceeding thirty days." This prompted speculation whether this country is about to end its nearly seven-year-old representation to the Vatican or possibly send another delegate. Some diplomatic authorities believed this was not necessarily so, however, and reported Taylor wants to be back in America by Christmas.

Now Ambassador

With the Taylor mission announcement came the news that the President has raised the rank of this country's representative to Iraq from minister to ambassador and named George Wadsworth, a career man, the first ambassador to Baghdad.

Wadsworth now is minister to both Syria and Lebanon.

In a further step emphasizing the importance given to stronger representation in the Middle East, the President decided to have a minister in those two countries.

He appointed Lowell C. Pinkerton, another career diplomat, minister to Lebanon and it was announced a minister to Syria will be named later.

Wadsworth, a 53-year-old native of Buffalo, has been in the diplomatic service 30 years.

He became America's first minister to Lebanon and Syria three years ago when the former French mandates became independent.

The United States has maintained diplomatic relations with Iraq for 15 years.

States Taylor's Purpose

America's mission at Baghdad has been in charge of James Moose, charge d' affaires, since April, 1945.

Pinkerton, 52, and a native of Medora, Ill., is now consul-general at Jerusalem he began his diplomatic career in 1917.

Taylor's rank is that of "personal representative" of the President.

Several Protestant organizations have protested against maintenance of a diplomatic mission to the Pope. Mr. Truman has indicated the mission will be continued until the peace treaties are completed.

His statement today apparently had in mind the Protestant protests because he said Taylor's aim as on previous visits to Rome, will be to "obtain for my guidance the counsel and cooperation of all men and women of good will whether in religion, in government, or in the pursuits of every day life."

Two Damage Suits Are Filed

A $20,000.00 damage suit in two counts was filed in Pettis county circuit court by Troy K. Craig, Ionia, Missouri, against the Sedalia Democrat Company Friday.

The first count states that the Sedalia Democrat is a newspaper of large circulation and that on November 4, 1946 there was printed and published in that newspaper the following false, defamatory and libelous statement: "Craig was arrested by Sergeant Fred Rodecker of the State Highway Patrol on a charge of careless and reckless driving." For this Craig asks damages of $10,000.00.

On the second count the plaintiff says that the defendant is publisher of another newspaper of large circulation, known as the Sedalia Capital which on November 5 published the same statement mentioned above. For this Craig says he was damaged in the sum of another $10,000.00, and therefore prays judgment against the defendant in the sum of $20,000.00.

Another suit for damages was filed in circuit court Friday by Craig against Elmer E. Sterling 1721 West Sixteenth Street, Sedalia. The suit states that on or about November 3, 1946, Craig was driving in a southerly direction on Missouri state highway No. 65 in his Chevrolet coach and was injured to the extent of $5,000.00 when a Chevrolet sedan, going north, driven by Sterling, crashed into his car. This accident occurred near Windsor Junction, which is on the north boundary of Benton county and the south boundary of Pettis county.

C. P. Junge, Cole Camp, is attorney, for Craig in both suits.

'Oklahoma' To Oklahoma

By Saul Feldman

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 23—(AP)—"Oklahoma" is finally coming to Oklahoma, and it's causing more commotion in the Sooner state than the original Cherokee land rush back in 'Pe.

The road company of the Broadway musical is opening a one-week stand here Monday night, and pardner, Oklahoma is preparing one of its biggest welcomings in history for the troupe and everyone else connected with the show.

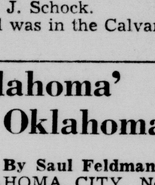

It's just a neighborly way of showing its gratitude for the production which has brought Oklahoma more publicity than the time former Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray threatened to dig up the flowers around the executive mansion and plant potatoes.

Three weeks before the opening it was a sell-out. An all-time indoor record for a legitimate production already has been set with a box-office take of some $135,000 set by the same show at Des Moines.

Deems Expense Cut Feasible

Rep. Taber Believes Three Billion Can Be Cut On Debt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—Reduction of federal expenditures in the next fiscal year by $12,000,000,000—$3,000,000,000 more than his previous estimates—was declared to be feasible today by Rep. Taber (R-NY).

Taber is to become chairman of the house appropriations committee in January.

"I believe we can cut $3,000,000,000 from the nation's debt and still reduce individual income taxes," he also told the reporters.

However, another leading Republican, Rep. Carlson, who becomes governor of Kansas in January, admonished that the coal strike "gravely threatens" Republican plans to slash the personal income taxes by 20 per cent.

Carlson voiced concern that strikes may cut down the national income, saying "everybody must realize that tax reduction depends on a high level of national income."

Would Reduce Employes

Last week Taber told newsmen the number of federal employes should be cut by 1,000,000 and the budget trimmed back next year at least $9,000,000,000 from the present $41,000,000,000 level.

In his revised statement today, after further studies, he said:

"My statement last Friday was made after very careful consideration. As a matter of fact my own figures as to what the budget should include, made up carefully and after consultation with budget officers of various departments, after allowing a margin of $2,500,000,000 for contingencies or new things that might come, indicate the needs of the government at no more than $29,141,000,000.

"This statement is made, having in mind that the people and congress can run wild and pass laws that will cost a lot more money. But I do not believe proper administration of government will require more."

Moreover, Taber declared there will be "no effort to impair needed national defense."

"I intend to make every effort to prevent duplication and waste in government," he said. "I already have instituted inquiries along the line of getting the proper information and proper basis for proper appropriation rocedure. We do not want any more waste."

Tony Pastor and His Orchestra Here Monday Night

The first of a tentative series of big name orchestra dances will be sponsored Monday night at Convention Hall, Liberty park, when Sedalia V. F. W. Post No. 5741 will bring Tony Pastor and his 19-piece recording orchestra to Sedalia for the dancing pleasure of the people of this community.

Bob Younger, who is in charge of the publicity for this event, announces that this dance is the first of a series which will be sponsored by the V. F. W. if Sedalia people show their appreciation of this type of dancing entertainment through good attendance.

Helping Hand Club Meets

The Helping Hand club met with Mrs. Charles Bistline November 13. Ten members were present. Mrs. George Martin, Sr., and Mrs. Willard Ritchie were visitors. The day was spent socially. The next meeting will be with Mrs. A. B. Cook on December 10. It will be an all-day meeting.

Home on Furlough

Pvt. Charles E. Ramseyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ramseyer, of Houstonia, who has just completed his basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., arrived in Sedalia Thursday, where he will spend a 17-day furlough visiting friends in Sedalia and his parents in Houstonia. He will report to Camp Stoneman, Cal., for overseas duty. He is in the infantry tank corps.

LISTEN! by Jim Carson

FOR SOMETIME now readers of this column have requested individual write-ups on each of KMBC's famed "The Texas Rangers." Now that the boys are much around the premises with a new show of their own at 10:30 p.m. Thursdays, there's no time like the present. So here goes!

Captain Bob

IT IS ONLY FITTING that we start off with Captain Bob—master of ceremonies for "The Texas Rangers," singer, arranger and song-writer of note. Bob is very much a member of the KMBC family. Like the station, he grew up around these parts — went to Graceland College up ln Arthur B. Church's home town of Lamoni. May 13th is his birthdate! Those in Independence remember him for his choir singing in the Stone Church and the Wah-demnok chorus. He went to school with Ted Malone, another KMBC luminary. Bob's pride and joy of recent musical accomplishments is the publication of a song folio of his original songs—twenty in all.

14 Karat Lead

THAT WEDNESDAY RHYMALINE SHOW (KBMC—7:45 a. m.) was the best ever. In last week's column we mentioned the "golden warblings" of Dapper David Andrews. Then Harry Jenks of the thousand fingers comes along Wednesday with a (quote) his voice is 14 karat lead (unquote). Boy, was that funny! Now, let's recap. Irish does the singing —Harry is a funnyman — where does Dave fit in? And Irish, you haven't been around Rhymaline Time too long. A little friendly advice! Don't ever do anything like telling Dave that he has a good voice. The first thing you know he'll be showing you his appreciation by having you out to the house for a duck dinner. The fact that it snowed the night before will have nothing to do with it—and that you'll be so tired from cleaning his walks that you lose your appetite. Didn't Ted tell you such things?

26 Years Old

THE COMING WEEK is National Radio Week! Birthdays are times for celebrations and congratulations. Broadcasting's 26th Birthday month calls for more than that. A note of Thanksgiving should also be included in the joyous proceedings. Through the miracle of the radio, the peoples of the world are shown the way to reach a common ground of understanding. Perhaps when television has achieved 26 years of progress, it may be the common denominator that will bring genuine peace and understanding to all peoples on earth. KMBC has several special programs in the air—so you'll want to keep your ear tuned to 980.

This and That

YOU'LL WANT to tune in 15 minutes earlier for the start of the Missouri-Kansas traditional grid clash Thanksgiving Day. Sam Molen and Gene Dennis have some surprises in store, starting at 1:30 p.m. . . Now, we've been even further corrected on our story about Tex Owens. Let it be known that Tex did not fall off the horse—but that the horse fell, on him. We should have known better than that!

And that appears to be 980 from here.

Don DeFore (top joins the fun when stars Claudette Colbert and John Wayne tangle with too much imagination and too little forethought in the merry comedy of errors "WITHOUT RESERVATIONS" playing now thru Wednesday at the Fox Theatre.

Evils of a Portable Radio—

Radios in homes and hospitals are wonderful instruments of entertainment. There are other places where they come in handy, too.

But once in awhile 'tis refreshing to get away from radio for a spell. On a recent trip to Chicago I did not appreciate being seated beside a young couple with a portable radio. To relax in a soft chair on a train and watch the scenery is diversion enough. Ears ought to have a rest. The clickety-clack of the car wheels provides relief in contrast to the continual jazz music heard at home over the radio.

At a football game in Columbia I sat in the neighborhood of a half dozen portable radios brought by people who came to see the Tigers play. Yet they had to have a blaring radio competing with the announcer on the public address system. The radio would be giving the play-by-play account of some eastern football game while the Tiger announcer would be reporting progress of the Missouri game.

Next I expect to sit in a moving picture show to see famous stars performing in competition with some radio bug who thinks he is going to get an evening's entertainment out of the movie at the same time he is listening to Jack Benny's program over a portable radio beside him. When that happens I'm going to get up and howl, and perhaps be thrown out of the treatre by Mr. Ghosen or Steve Souttar.

There is such a thing as crowding the mind with too much entertainment at once and getting nothing out of either brand, but a case of jangled nerves.

Of course a portable radio in a movie house isn't much worse than the inveterate conversationalists who sit in back of or in front of you. There ought to be a spot in every movie where an actor turns toward the audience and shouts: "Quiet Please."

Everything in moderation is good medicine. Too much radio, too much conversation, and maybe too much griping, like too much aspirin, loses its potency.

Chalk this one up for national progress in solving one of the major irritations in moving pictures shows—development of a noiseless popcorn bag. It's pop-proof, too!

Thickness of the human skull ranges from less than one-eighth inch to almost one-half inch, except in the case of John L. Lewis.

This year's pickle crop of 8,532,524 bushels is the biggest on record, but is picayunish compared with the every-Saturday night pickle crop harvested in the country's taverns.

A substance 4000 times sweeter than sugar has been discovered by chemists. However, this substance is not near as sweet as the taffy passed around by politicians during a political campaign.

* * * *

Seeing a Missouri football game for the first time, the sweet young co-ed remarked she'd like to meet that football hero who "makes such wonderful passes."

* * * *

An expression is going around that the Republicans after winning the elections have "got a bear by the tail" meaning the tremendous task of straightening out national administration affairs inherited from the New Deal. After their initial jubilation over victory Republicans are beginning to have a serious look upon their faces.

Since the election Democrats instead of appearing glum and mourning over defeat, are actually smiling. It is a smile of relief. Right down in their hearts they are glad it's all over and they can relax. The Democrats have had that bear by the tail, too, and they're now rubbing the cramps out of their fingers after letting go of that bear's tail.

When the heat is turned on by the Republican Congress in Washington we may expect to see the cherry blossoms blooming in January.

Some persons wearing single focal-lensed glasses reach a point in life where eyes no longer see objects far away as well as near at hand, or vice versa. A visit to the eye doctor usually results in an order for bi-focal lenses. For a time difficulty is experienced in adjusting onesself to their proper use. But the greater satisfaction is seeing near and far with equal facility compensates for the annoying breaking-in period.

After undergoing this experience recently I wondered what impelled Benjamin Franklin to invent bi-focal glasses. I chanced upon his explanation which was: "that he might see his food, and the ladies across the table." After attending a Missouri Press Association banquet in St. Louis and being able for the first time to see with equal ease the pretty ladies across the table and the steak in front of me, I have great respect for Ben Franklin's inventive genius.

BAD POSTURE CAUSES DISEASE

Several physioligical facts must be understood to comprehend how posture causes disease. All realize that normal blood supply to a part is necessary for health. If a point is injured, it becomes red, warm and swollen because of an increase of blood to the part. This is natures attempt to heal.

Irritation of certain nerves increase blood supply, irritation of others decrease it. Abnormal posture, depending upon what part of the spine most affected, will cause a strain and irritation of certain nerves. At first there may be a congestion in some organ, due to too much blood, a remedial action. However, if a nerve cell is stimulated for too long a period it will become fatigued and no longer capable of increasing the blood supply if it is a vaso dilator nerve cell involved, the congestion subsides, the tissues become hardened and fibrotic and no longer capable of normal function. This is a chronic stage and difficult of correction if of too long standing.

Irritation of vasoconstrictor nerves, which cause a decrease in the size of arteries to a part and therefore decrease the blood supply will more quickly bring about a condition similar to the above.

In either case the important thing to do is to find out where the nerves are irritated that are interfering with the blood supply and remove the irritation if possible. It may occur in any part of the body but one of the most common points of interference, which is overlooked by all but chiropractors, is the spine where bad posture is the real cause. Spinal adjustment helps correct such conditions but patients must help themselves by correcting posture which distort the spine.

Red Cross Corner

Mr. Ernest Vornbrock, special field representative from the Midwestern area office of the American Red Cross, in the interests of First Aid, Accident Prevention and Water Safety, will be in Sedalia Monday to confer with the chairmen, Dr. K. F. Holdren and Mrs. C. F. Scotten. Various aspects of the program will be discussed, with special emphasis being placed on the importance of this service in the school curriculum.

Miss Nettie Lamm, chairman of Junior Red Cross, is pleased with the progress of the J. R. C. campaign this year, but stresses the necessity of the county schools turning in their individual reports. The National Children's Fund is receiving great attention this year and it is well to remember just how much this fund accomplishes. Money from this fund is used to send food, medicine and clothing to children in war-torn Europe. Special medical kits are sent to schools. School supplies such as pencils, paper, rulers, crayons and so forth are provided for the children. The boys and girls in Europe haven't tasted candy for years. Now through Junior Red Cross they are receiving dried milk and cod liver oil, and other foods that may be shipped. And they are getting candy. To all of us who even during our shortage times have had candy when we wanted it, this state of affairs seems incredible, but it is a fact. So do not turn a disinterested ear to the words, Junior Red Cross. The children of the United States, YOUR children, are doing a grand job.

CUTTERS! CUTTERS! CUTTERS! The Pettis County Chapter is still sending out SOS's for women to volunteer as cutters for the present consignment of boys' shorts. Let us remind you again that the little boys of Europe were no more responsible for the war than the little boys here in Sedalia, yet if they are not clothed many will perish from the cold this winter. Cutting is not difficult, and Mrs. Fred Brink, chairman of Red Pross Production, will arrange the schedule to make it most convenient for you to help. Please call Mrs. Brink, 1944, and offer to help in this post-war emergency project.

Mrs. McCune Was Club Hostess

The health letter was read by Mrs. William Riecke and also the president's letter.

The members voted to change the meeting date to the third Wednesday of each month. Gifts of fruit and vegetables contributed by members were collected at this meeting to be sent to the Mercy hospital for Thanksgiving.

It was decided that the club will have a Christmas party for members and families on the next meeting date. Four new members were accepted into the club at this meeting.

Mechanical Pickers Take Place of Corn Huskers

By Odell Hanson

OMAHA, Nov. 23—(AP)—Shed a tear for the national conrnhusking championship contest, one-time big time agricultural sporting event.

Like most other spectacles for pleasure, the national bangboard derby bowed out during the war. The 1942 contest planned near Mankato, Minn., was cancelled "to save rubber." So far the event has shown no signs of revival, at least on its former scale.

But don't mourn it too deeply. As a sporting event for spectators it was a dud. A drawing card—yes. (The crowds were huge) But a sports thriller — No.

The reasons were obvious.

Fall is flirting with winter when midwestern farmers pick their corn and husking contest spectators didn't even have the meagre protection from the elements afforded by a football stadium.

"Shuckers" in Missouri

The huskers — "shuckers" in Missouri — lined up in their lanes which consisted of a group of standing corn rows separated by clearing of corn stubble. No one could possibly watch all the huskers at once. Partisans chose their man and when the starting bomb exploded, off he went, stripping the stalks dexterously and flicking the ears rhythmically against the bangboard on his wagon, his loyal followers trailing along as best they might.

To follow even one contestant a spectator had to be both mobile and agile and moving around in a cornfield meant exposure to thick dust or stick mud, depending on soil conditions.

Then too, there was plenty of competition for vantage space some of the other tens of thousands of contest visitors trying to keep up with the field action, not to mention some 1,000 guards normally employed to keep spectators from trampling the corn and interfering with the pickers.

Hard to Know Who Won

Even after the contest had run its alloted time, a man still didn't know who had won. If a watcher was eager enough he could use a stop watch to determine the number of ears each picker was tossing into his wagon per minute, but that didn't tell him much. Under the computation system whereby ears left in the field and husks remaining on the picked ears incurred penalties, no one could know who won until the judges had weighed the loads, inspected the ears for husks and gleaned the husked rows.

Newspapers never did get around to sending out their sports experts to cover the event, the farm editors went instead.

That's not to say the contests lacked color. Crowds annually numbered tens of thousands, even upwards of 100,000. Play by play accounts went out on radio networks. Celebrities showed up and there were always a handful of bands. A flock of concessions and hot dog vendors (who sold mostly hamburgers, a corn belt preference).

Wallace's Idea

Ex-Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace, then of Iowa, generally is credited with conceiving the husking contest idea in 1924. Its immediate purpose was to settled an old farm argument about how much corn a man could pick in a given period of time. The contest turned out to be a natural, farm publications took over the sponsorship and the event became big time.

County and state elimination contests produced the roster of national contest entries. Chambers of Commerce in the corn growing area counted it a great day when they managed to wangle a selection as national contest site. By 1935 (the contest was held that year at Newton., Ind.) crowds estimated at 100,000 were turning out. In 1936 at Newark, O., the crowd was estimated at 150,000.

Promoters even put on national contests for women huskers.

It was the mechanical picker, even more than the war and the somewhat souped-up quality of the sporting event — that sped the cornhusking contest on its way out. Tractor drawn pickers are making corn picking by hand a forgotten art.

Good for Spectator

Perhaps if an idea conceived by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce in 1940 had borne fruit, the contest might have hung on for a while longer. Bidding for the 1942 national contest, the chamber proposed (perhaps with tongue in cheek) that corn be planted on the infield at Ak-Sar-Ben race track in Omaha. Spectators could have parked their automobiles on the huge concrete lot, would have been ushered into the stands to watch the contest in comfort and been served their hamburgers in best football game fashion.

It would have been an improvement — for the spectators, anyway.

1,000 EGGS IN EVERY HEN
IF YOU KEEP CHICKENS
CUT THIS OUT

"The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of the hen was too short," said Henry Trafford, nationally famous Poultry Expert, for nearly eighteen years Editor of "Poultry Success."

The average pullet may lay 150 eggs or more—in second year may lay 100. Then she goes to market. Yet it has been definitely established that every pullet hatched has from 1,000 to 3,000 minute egg germs in her system—and may, in many instances, be made to lay on a highly profitable basis for as long as five years—if given proper care.

How to work to get towards 1,000 eggs from hens instead of discarding them after one year of laying; how to keep up high production from fewer birds, save on upkeep, cost of breeding, rearing and feeding, and so get more net profit from every dozen eggs. These and many other money-making poultry secrets are in Mr. Trafford's 1,000 EGG HEN PLAN of poultry raising, one copy of which will be sent to any reader of this paper who keeps poultry. Eggs, this year, will again be in great demand—at good prices—to take the place of high price meat. Means real profit to the poultry keeper who can make his birds produce. Mr. Trafford's plan tells how. If you keep chickens and want them to pay with EXTRA EGGS cut out this notice and mail name and address to PENN POULTRY SERVICE, Suite 513, 333 North 15th St., Philadelphia (2), Pa., and free copy of the 1,000 EGG PLAN will be sent by return mail.

Use Judgment In Gifts That Go Overseas

A Little Care Makes So Much Difference To the Recipients

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—The time is drawing shor' for sending Christmas packages overseas.

And for hundreds of thousands of people in foregin lands it will be a pleasant or melancholy season, depending on whether they receive remembrances from the United States.

Uncle Sam, this year more than ever, will have to be the International Santa Claus. Returned soldiers will want to send something to war-time friends abroad. Millions of Americans, of course, also have relatives in foreign countries, and there are many thousand troops still stationed in distant outposts, safeguarding the peace.

None of them will be looking any gift horses in the mouth, but a little care in the selection of presents may make considerable difference in the enthusiasm with which they will be received.

The main idea: Give something useful rather than clever.

Use Judgment

During the war, for example, the boys in heat harbors like Manila and Calcutta got a little weary of pulling wool scarves and earmuffs out of crumpled Christmas boxes. Soldiers fighting at the front in Africa didn't think any more of Aunt Nelly for sending them a brightly colored necktie. One WAC got a set of poker chips.

Such gifts left a distinctly sour note. They were as out of place as a hiccup at a W. C. T. U. meeting, as useless as a watchfob on a penguin. And they made the boys and girls in uniform pretty sore at the thoughtless but well-meaning folks back home.

Similarly, a culture-oozing lady in America who this year remembers a pre-war woman friend in England by shipping her an etching of the New York skyline can expect a cool note of gratitude in exchange.

English women would much rather have a pair of good stockings, a few old or new bedsheets and pillowcases, or a carton of soap. If they have children, their heart will go out to you for garments warm and wearable for the youngsters.

Clothing Needed

In any war-touched country shoes and clothing—never mind if they're a little worn—are more welcome than manna. (Modern manna is a sweetish substance obtained by incisions in the stems of various Southern European shrubs and is mildly laxative.)

If you know their intellectual preferences, friends abroad would be happy to get a packet of new books. Everywhere there is an increasing interest in American books, and the supply is scarce.

Other suggestions:

Boxes of food and candy are highly desirable gifts in most foreign countries. Include at least one delicacy you think they might have missed most; one touch of high living can soften many bleak hours.

Send peppermints only if you can't get chocolates.

Thermos flasks and all kinds of household gadgets are in short supply. They'll like them. If the gift box is going to natives of Germany and Central Europe, put in some balls of yarn for darning, some thread, several sizes of needles.

Money Always Welcome

Don't send cigarets and cigars to friends in England or France unless you know they can afford to pay high customs duties.

Now for the boys still in service abroad. Don't annoy them with those funny little foxhole pillows. They are as out of date as foxholes. If they are in Germany or Japan, send along a few extra bucks or a carton or so of cigarets.

Either the bucks or the cigarets will finance them for an evening out with an army-approved fraulein or one of Madame Butterfly's granddaughters. And you can be sure of one thing—they won't talk about the war.

Merry Christmas is Really in the Cards

Shown above is a round-up of greeting card motifs which symbolize the country's reconversion to peacetime living. Newcomers bidding for ultra-modern's favor are cards of transparent plastic.

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A gayer, merrier and more peaceful Christmas is in the cards—greeting cards, that is, which the Post Office Department, handicapped by transportation facilities and shortages in personnel, urges you to mail early and send progressively.

Sealed envelopes stamped with first-class postage, which are a "must" for sending cards to the armed forces overseas (these should have been mailed prior to November 15) are also urged for the regular mailing. To insure prompt delivery of this year's cards to armed forces at distant destinations, the use of the new 5-cent Air Mail Postage is also urged.

The 1946 message, which stresses "Peace on earth, good will to men" in religious, whimsical, humorous, patriotic, and homeloving themes, is conveyed this Christmas on a new kind of card. That's lumarith film, a postwar plastic which crashes the traditional greeting card realm that's been dominated for years by cardboard and paper. It's used either as a sparkling, transparent cover for paper or as a vehicle for starkly simple greetings, and ultra-moderns like it. Greeting card industry spokesmen predict that by next Christmas at least 50 per cent of the cards distributed will be made of plastic.

Another postwar newcomer to which tradition bows is the brilliantly colored kodachrome card, which typifies the advances of modern photography.

Themes for cards, both traditional and modern, reflect the nation's peaceful temper and its current thinking in national and international affairs. New patriotic themes are frequently friendly bows to the United Nations, with cards that depict our Allies' customs and costumes.

In the bright galaxy of cards are new offerings from the American Artists Group, which reproduces the works of well-known American artists. This year's offering includes faithful reproductions of museum masterpieces taken from the Encyclopedia Britannica collection of contemporary American paintings.

Mother Of The Christmas 'TB' Stamp

By Adelaide Kerr
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"Help us, Emily!" pleaded young Dr. Joseph Wales on a bleak afternoon a few months before Christmas, 1907. "Otherwise we'll have to turn out those poor sufferers to die."

For the last hour, he and his cousin, Emily Bissell, Wilmington, Del., social worker, had been reviewing the dogged daring experiment of a group of Wilmington doctors who sought to cure tuberculosis, the No. 1 killer of the times. In an age when people believed the white plague doomed its victims to certain death, they had assembled eight charity patients in a little shack on the banks of the Brandywine for which they paid Alfred duPont a dollar a year rent, and were trying the effects of fresh air, rest and the right food. The patients were making progress but the funds had run out. So Dr. Wales appealed to his cousin for help.

That's How the Christmas Tuberculosis Stamp Was Born

Most people would have quailed and quit before the problem. What Emily Bissell did started a ball rolling that has amassed in 39 years $165,000,000 which has been used to battle the disease back to seventh place among the killers. Today both the annual stamp sale and the battle are conducted by the National Tuberculosis Association. This year the fight is being waged with renewed vigor because tuberculosis is still the biggest killer of young people from 15 to 35, who are working to acquire an education, start a career and build a home.

Only $300 were needed to carry on that early battle on the banks of the Brandywine, but Emily Bissell racked her brain for days before she found an answer.

"Then I remembered a story by Jacob Riis of a Christmas stamp that originated in Denmark," she recalled recently. "It was easy to raise money for a sanitarium for tubercular children. I thought, 'Why not get out a stamp to raise money for the shack?'"

So she began. She waded through a forest of discouragement. Many considered fresh air a threat in those days of closed rooms. Others were horrified at the idea of coupling "Merry Christmas" with the most effective killer of the times. Still others said a penny stamp could never raise enough to make a difference.

But Emily Bissell continued to blaze her trail and people began to help her. She drafted the crimson and white design for the first stamp—a wreath around the words "Merry Christmas"—and an artist whipped it into shape. Two women friends gave ten dollars apiece to help. A printer did the work and agreed to take his pay when it came. The Wilmington postmaster permitted stamps to be sold in the postoffice lobby.

Sales were fairly slow at first, but Emily Bissell gave them a push by taking her story to a Philadelphia newspaper. It did a series of stories. The stamps began to sell like hot cakes. At the end of the season the had brought $3,000—ten times the goal. Last year they raised $15,500,000. The funds are used to educate the public, operate clinics and nursing services, train personnel.

Most of the money amassed by the stamps to fight tuberculosis has come from the "little people" who could give from ten cents to a dollar apiece. Miss Bissell has pinned her faith on them since the days of the first sale when a grimy little newsboy pushed into the office and dropped a penny on the counter.:

"Gimme one," he said. "Me sister's got it!"

Korean Yule

SEOUL, Korea—Approximately 50,000 U. S troops in Korea will celebrate Christmas and New Year's holidays on the company level with unit commanders responsible for arrangements. An extra ration of turkeys is planned for all army messes on each of the two holidays.

The 380 children under ten years old in the 650 army families in the occupied area will have local fir for Christmas trees, like the ones they knew at home, and presents imported by parents.

Special church services will be conducted in all army chapels and Korean churches on Christmas and New Year's.

Koreans observe the holidays much as Americans do, with church attendance, Christmas trees, municipal decorations and family dinners. This will be their second Christmas since their liberation from the Japanese, who banned observance of the holidays by Koreans during the war.

Korea's holiday weather usually approximates that of the northern United States—snow with temperature around zero.

Ready to shine under any Christmas tree are the gaily wrapped gifts pictured above. The bottle of wine, far left, announces its contents with a cluster of artificial grapes tied around the cork. The cornucopa conceals a man'stie beneath its tarlatan-tied top. An apple and small candies make the merry Santa, center, who carries a check in his striped scroll. Puff bag, right, of tissue paper, doilies and holiday trimmings, glorifies, a plum pudding.

Ingenuity Yields Gay Wrappings

You can concoct amusing and original Christmas wrappings from everyday items such as the market basket, ginger jar and red paper bag, pictured above. if you spruce them up with bells, ribbons and pine cones. Sketched below, conventionally wrapped gifts get a lift from a star-studded evergreen spray, left, or a pompom of cellophane straw, right. Gilded coat hanger, center, carries gift of mistletoe, pine cones and evergeens.

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)— There's Christmas package charm in as rosy a receptacle as a market hamper or a penny-store candy bag, if you'll dress it up for the gift it carries for witty, intriguing or tongue-in-cheek effects.

Jack Kelly, florist and packager for New York's swank gift-givers, is famed for his themes of incongruity. Marching out his tricks with an eye to tipping off the reader, we give you first his market hamper.

Sprucing it up as a catch-all carrier of gifts to a family, he ties sprigs of fresh juniper, mistletoe or holly to the handles, and fills the hamper with assorted gifts wrapped in smart cabana-striped paper.

There's wit, so Jack Kelly's smiling customers will testify, in the incongruity of tucking a nylon stocking treasure in a penny-store red paper bag. It can be tied with such silvery gimmicks as dime-store sleigh bells. A holiday cornucopia is gayer if the tie given to a gent is wrapped lengthwise in a sheath of bright tarlan, tied to leave a whoosh of the gauzy stuff at one end.

Giving a bottle? If it's wine, top it with its luscious symbol—a real or phony cluster of grapes tied on with tinselly ribbon. A plum pudding? Wrap it as Jack does, in multiple sheets of varicolored tissle, but laid down and pleated before you wrap puff-ball style. Tie with yellow sisal or skeins of yarn, and stick in a plum nesting in gilded leaves as the symbol of the contents. For more frills, you can add a fluted lace paper doily and anchor it with Scotch tape.

Got an old ginger jar? Or stoneware pot? Using it as a home for a costume-jewelry gift, cover lid and tie on a circle of brilliant Chinese paper.

Now for those good-as-gold but just as cold checks that pass at Christmas time. You can warm yours up by wrapping it in a tiny scroll of holiday paper, then tying it to the arm of a jovial Santa made of a big fat apple. For his arms and legs use marshmallow gum drops speared with toothpicks; for his beard, cotton. Using a marshmallow for that fine fellow's face—topped with a gumdrop hat—give him cloves for eyes, a cranberry for a nose. Oh, yes, cloves also make his vest buttons.

Still a stickler for the conventional package? All right, here are tricks for those. To a wrapped package add a pompom made of colored plastic straws, dipping the ends—if you want to go that far—in various contrasting shades of sealing wax. Entwine a chain of christmas tree balls around the pompom, and tie it to the package with holiday ribbon.

You can give a conventionally wrapped box more charm if you'll tie on a spray of evergreens, dotted with gold paper stars and spangled with colored glass balls. Pasting Santa Claus stickers to make tags for ribbon ends is a good trick to use on any package.

To add a fillip to your gift of Christmas evergreens, hang by a red ribbon to a plain wooden coat-hanger, brushed with gold paint to clothe it in holiday splendor.

U. S. and German Teen-Agers Join in Berlin Christmas Carols

By Richard Kasischke

BERLIN—(AP)— This Christmas, for the first time since the war, American and German children will sing carols together.

These groups are now rehearsing weekly for appearances during the holiday week in Army hospitals and other American institutions.

The American children are teen-agers, 14 to 18 years old, dependents of soldiers and military government personnel stationed here. They are a group without a club name, organized by Mrs Robert A. McClure, wife of Brigadier General McClure, chief of the American Military government's information control section.

Mrs. McClure organized the young group at the request of the American Women's club of Berlin, of which she is a member. Its social activities include a monthly dance at which young people of the Allied nations are guests.

Now the American group, numbering about 50, has formed a choral group which has joined with about 20 members of the German Madrigal choral group for Christmas singing. They practice every Tuesday afternoon under a German singing instructor at an American occupied hotel here.

Their main holiday appearances will be on Christmas Eve, when they will ride about the city on sleighs or hayracks supplied by the American 16th Constabulary Squadron.

The German singers selected for the joint group also are teen-agers.

Europe Plans Christmas Festivities

By Barbara Wace
AP News Features

LONDON — Europe is looking forward to the best Christmas in seven years, and although high prices will reign for virtually all requisites for the "festive season" the prospect was that the first Christmas free from the shadow of war and the chaos of the immediate post-war period would see brighter hearths, better toys and more inviting tables.

From Britain, France, Italy and even from occupied Germany Associated Press correspondents reported that while the black market would continue to benefit, the little man would be able to obtain something for the holiday through legitimate channels.

In Britain parents who spent the war years searching frantically in the toy shops for something not too shoddy now can buy toys of pre-war quality, at post-war prices. The toy industry, 100 percent recruited for the war effort, has in less than a year come back to normal quicker than any other industry.

Better quality toys have pushed the black marketers who flourished the last seven Christmases out of the running. Many an English child will be playing Christmas morning with his first well made kiddie car, or model airplane, or her first doll with eyes which really open and shut.

The same improvement is true with gifts for grown-ups. Father can buy mother French perfume or American costum jewelry if he's willing to pay the luxury tax, or good quality kitchenware if she won't mind something useful.

In Italy and France the same shopping situation is true, though here the luxuries are much more abundant and mouth - watering, but the chance of buying them is less.

Even in Germany, the kids look forward to more presents this Christmas. For the GI has come to the rescue of parents whose savings have mostly evaporated on the black market. Parties planned by the troops will provide the kids with clothes, toys, candy and soap to take away.

Parties by U. S. occupation troops are being planned for Italian children too, but in France it is expected that an American personnel except Graves Registration, ATC and a few special units will have pulled out before then.

In England, though some wine is coming in from abroad, beer may be shorter and weaker over Christmas. There is Scotch and gin in many shops, but at fabulous prices—the average price for liquor in a fancy bottle being something between three and four pounds (twelve and sixteen dollars.)

The controlled price for turkeys is being reduced to 80 cents a pound and there are optimistic hopes for more than last year, with imports from Northern Ireland, America and the Argentine. Plum puddings have been exempted from rationing but nobody yet knows how many there will be.

Frenchmen have a better chance of a good Christmas dinner than for several years. Hundreds of restaurants have reopened in the Paris area, many of them serving excellent meals at moderate prices.

The food situation is better in Italy and Germany too. Grocery and delicatessen stores are packed with food in Rome, while in Berlin the ration is higher in the Anglo-American zones than it has been since the end of the war—1550 calories a day for the normal consumer, and food packages are arriving from abroad to eke out the rations.

Turkey Tricks

Backs, necks and giblets of turkey are suitable for steaming or stewing. Stewing takes less time, but sacrifices more of the flavor of the meat. To steam, place on a rack in a pan with a little water in the bottom, partly cover, and cook for several hours until tender.

To stew, place turkey pieces on rack, half fill the kettle with lightly salted water, partly cover and simmer until the bird is tender. Add celery leaves and onion to the stewing water for extra taste appeal.

Gifts to Please the Hard to Please

This is a new lounge chair that invites you to sit down and put your feet up. Shifting body weight tilts it into upright position. Curved to cradle body contours comfortably, this invention will make a hit with a hard-to-please person.

By Kay Sherwood
NEA Staff Writer

NEW ORK—(NEA—The star-spangled array of ingenious new gadgets lining up on store shelves for the postwar parade of Christmas gifts, offer bright answers to the vexing question of what to give the person who seems to have everything.

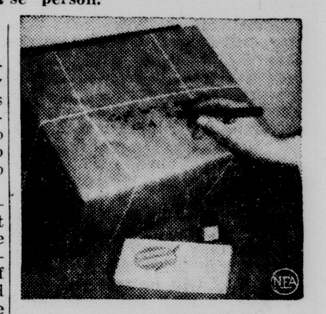

Here is a new "rest medium"—so termed by its maker because it is neither chair, bed nor chaise lounge but a little of all three—that will cuddle the urge of friends who like to sit down and put their feet up (and name one who doesn't.)

Christened the Barwa by its designers, this invention has a firm cushioned seat contour-curved to cradle the body from head to toe in a naturally restful position. Instead of chair legs, the Barwa has metal tubing runners rounded at each end so that by shifting body weight you can sit upright or recline in complete-rest position when feet and head are at the same level.

Streamlined copper chafing dish would add luster to any party-giving hostess's buffet.

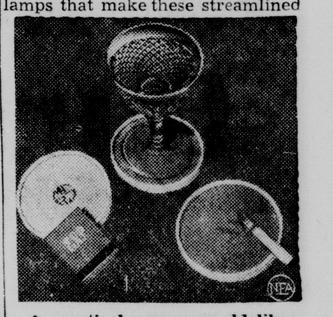

What puts the familiar hat box in the Yuletide line-up is the Sunday punch surprise it pulls when the black plastic lid is lifted to reveal an electric record-player. Inspired by the hat-box trademark of glamorous models, the lightweight red morocco-lined phonograph is carried by a sturdy handle and will be 'must' luggage for the girl who likes music wherever she goes.

With this handy brush-pen, large mailing packages are quickly and legibly addressed.

Every family with food and clothing cartons to ship to relatives overseas will applaud another novel gifts—the brush-pen that writes with felt nibs instead of a metal point to mark up an address smoothly and legibly on the coarsest wrapping paper.

Give the hostess a chance to build her reputation as a cordon bleu chef with new chafing dishes and matching crepe suzettes pans. Spruced up and decked out in new materials—aluminum, brass and copper—these alcohol-burners are newly designed with curving legs and curving metal shields for the lamps that make these streamlined beauties at the Sunday - supper buffet.

A practical person would like the asbestos ashtray-coasters above. When one side is soiled coaster can be reversed.

Whimsies to delight the practical person are reversible ash-tray-coasters made of absorbent asbestos with gold or silver metallic-paper rims. Clever and inexpensive, they can be flipped over for another tour of service when one side shows signs of wear.

Hatbox phonograph, above, would intrigue a music-lover on your Christmas list.

Gala Gifts for Girls on Your Christmas List

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The dazzle of this season's fashions, any eyeful of which may call for dark glasses, focuses its fullest rays on Christmas gifts of apparel marked for the gals.

Even nylons, which at least one manufacturer claims will fill a portion of the demand of holiday shoppers, step into the razzle-dazzle with flirtatious tatoo designs indelibly inked on at knee and ankle.

Christmas-marked negligees and slippers—always near the top of the list of every man who can take a hint—rival the fireworks of a shooting star. Almost as phenomenal, too, are slippers of gold kid, for example, which Delman designs with curling toes like a harem queen's. Many of the super-glamorous hostess gowns owe their splendor to two pieces—a sheath of crepe topped by a sleeveless floor-length coat of brocade.

Sparklers that attract shoppers to accessory counters are sequin-lit sweaters and headband-and-belt sets, and new metallic hoods. New gimmicks in jewelry showcases are platina gems that look for all the world like precious stuff but dont cost as much, and bold gold-washed 'bicycle clips" with hearts attached. The idea behind these is that a girl can wear her heart on her sleeve or swing it from her neck, if she wants to encircle it with the slip - styled choker.

As glittering as her Christmas tree is this evening hood of sparkling metallic cloth designed to win favor from the girl who wants to keep step with newest trends of fashion.

Last word in chi-chi are gifts like these Delman-designed slippers for at-home wear, made of golden kid piped with red and featuring toes that curl like a harem queen's.

The change from sa[illegible] to flirt is made easy for a girl if the gift of a gala black lace fan, trimmed with ermine tails like the Maximillian design above, is one of her Christmas gifts.

Furry accessories make up in chi-chi what they lack in glitter. Piled up with elegant pelts—mink, sable, leopard and ermine—are bags, muffs, scarves and even fans to tempt the shopper who is shopping for a lady on his list. Done up for Christmas is a black lace fan, trimmed with ermine tails, which is Maximillian-designed for the purpose of turning the saintliest girl into a flirt.

The shopper in search of practical gifts can pick from the woolen heap of smart new things, like sweater - and - glove classics and trick bootees in two-toned yarn which slip on but are hand-crocheted to look as though there were lacings in front.

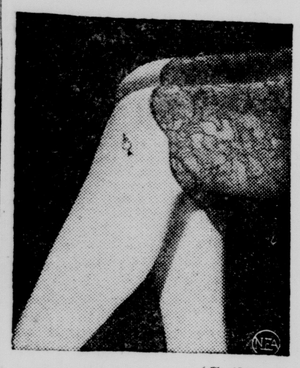

Practical, too—but with what airs—is a flock of new umbrellas, made to look like a dandy's swagger-stick with cane-slim sheaths of matching fabric. One cane two-toned umbrella that's packing 'em in the aisles—the girls, that is—has a clown-pouff sheath to match that's made half and half of red and black taffeta.

Winning that smile is a new swagger-stick-umbrella sheathed in clown-pouff case. It vies for favor with de luxe brocaded coat-and-negligee ensemble worn by model and glittering gifts of sweater, belt and headband set and jewelry. Hand-crocheted boots strike practical note.

Billy the Kid and his gang of outlaws ranged as far north as Las Vegas in northeastern New Mexico. This city was the destination of many of their illegal cattle drives.

Pueblo Indian women of New Mexico, in ancient times, used matted pot rests of grass for comfort while carrying filled ollas (narrow necked pottery jars) on the tops of their heads.

Billy the Kid, New Mexico's most notorious desperado, was at one time, employed by John S. Chisum, who was known as the cattle king of the West. The Kid was one of Chisum's co-called "Pecos Warriors," a gang composed of men who boasted that they could take more punishment than an Indian.

Americans Send Christmas Joy To French Widows and Orphans

By Adelaide Kerr
AP Newsfeature Writer

A bitter wind was blowing on the day, a few weeks before Christmas, 1944, when a little knot of French men and women gathered in the cemetery at Ivry to lay flowers on the graves of five teen-age resistance workers, shot by the Nazis.

Bitter thoughts churned in their minds as they began to trudge back to town through the wind-swept, war-torn countryside.

"Perhaps," said one, thinking aloud, "one would not suffer so much if one tried to help these others. We lost our children, but there are women and children who have lost their breadwinners. For them it must be even worse—if it could be worse.

"One could begin right now—for Christmas," said a woman, smiling for the first time in months. "here is an old coat of Jacque's. I could make come warm little jackets of it."

"I have a little chocolate," said another.

And so was born the Association Nationale des Families de Fusilles et Massacres (The National Association of the Families of the Shot and Massacred.)

A letter telling of its work crossed the Atlantic several months later. Last February seven men and women gathered in a Greenwich Village apartment to launch the American committee, known as the Friends of Widows and Orphans of the French Resistance. It is now allied with American Aid to France and its chairman is Mrs. Robin McKown, assistant to an official of the Book of the Month club.

For the last few months the committee has devoted its energies to playing Santa Claus. It already has dispatched many boxes to brighten Noel for more than 1,000 children, whose parents were killed in the French Resistance. The boxes contain stuffed animals to cuddle, rubber balls to bounce, bright toys and marbles, new sweaters, sugar, canned butter, bacon, sweet chocolate and other food.

"We raised the money for them in a lot of different ways," said Mrs. McKown, a pretty dark-eyed blond, pausing a minute at her busy desk. "Jean Benoit, a French painter, gave us a painting and we auctioned that. Then we had a toy party and charged a dollar or a toy as admission. We also gave a big supper dance at a New York hotel.

"The shipping boys at the Book of the Month club gave one lunch hour every two weeks to packing and shipping all the things."

After Christmas the committee will concentrate on its year-round job of sending food, clothing and medicines to orphans and families who lost their breadwinners in the resistance.

The 60 members, most of whom are business men and women, have enrolled 300 American foster parents. Each sends two packages a month, costing a total of about $15. Hundreds of others have clubbed together in groups of 15 or 20 to "adopt" an orphan. Packages are dispatched directly to the orphan, whose name is supplied by the French committee.

Sam Colt, inventor of the Colt revolver, gave exhibitions of laughing gas in traveling shows to obtain the cash needed to patent his revolver.

Maros de Nsai, a Franciscan friar and the discoverer of the famed Seven Cities of Cibola in western New Mexico, did not find seven cities but only six which are now reduced to but one—the Indian Pueblo called Zuni.

Spanish padres in 17th Century New Mexico kept delicacies such as tobacco and chocolate under lock and key in the churches. Such items were distributed to Pueblo Indians in small quantities.

For Men This Christmas—Hats Get 'Call to Colors'

AP Newsfeatures

Ever since the first veteran of World War II got his honorable discharge papers, the trend has been towards color in men's apparel as a startling change-over from the dull, drab service uniforms of the war years. The first real splurge in color was reflected in men's neckwear and hose—then shorts, pajamas and sports apparel went in for color combinations, frequently bizarre, but usually acceptable.

Now hats are being called to the colors. A new streamlined casual hat that is preblocked to shape—in a drizzle-resistant linen type fabric—is offered in 10 flattering colors—Beige, Indian Wheat, Natural, Grey, Sky Blue, Sport Green, Gold, Indian Corn, London Tan and Coral.

Sparkling Packages for Cosmetic Gifts Are Designed for Double-Duty Careers

Handsome new packages double the appeal of gifts of favorite cosmetics. For her friends, the wise gift-giver, above, has selected perfumes encased in plastic bird cages and bells and fine leather traveling cases and pouch fitted with skin-care essentials.

By Alice Hart
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK — (NEA) — After years of having practically nothing to wear, cosmetics are bedecked for Christmas in their most elegant dress—sparkling new plastics, suave satins, starched lace and fine leathers—which is a symbol of the mood of the second postwar holiday.

Figuring that U. S. women are really giving in to the gypsy's itchy foot, the No. 1 offering of almost every big cosmetic house is a postwar travelling kit. Using fine leather cases again to house make-up, skin-care preparations and manicuring aids, these kits range from poucho bags that appeal to teen-agers to flight luggage fit for a traveling queen.

Teen-ager's own perfume and sachet are packed in this cunning lace-covered box.

New emphasis on practicality is seen in lotion-proof and washable linings for cases, one of which is thoroughly sheathed with acetate. This is a guarantee that its suave moire lining will stay suave, no matter what spills.

Sparkling see-through plastics give homes to everything from nail polish and make-up sets to haughty perfumes of both foreign and domestic brands. Belying their seeming frivolity are the after-uses planned for these sparkling boxes. A star-shaped plastic container for perfume has a career ahead planned for it as a cigaret or collar button box. A glittering acetate bird cage, made realistic with gold-studded bars, will house guest-room powder puffs when the three bottles of eau de toilette are dispossessed. A plastic bell that brings a perfume trio will land very likely, on some antique-lover's table as a "sous cloche" cover for a Victorian trinket.

Opaque plastics take hand-painted motifs which make collector's items and permanent dressing-table fixtures of cosmetic packages. A large fluted bowl of white plastic filled with dusting powder and puff, for example, will be cherished long after contents vanish for the paint-brush moss rose motifs that decorate it and for its after-uses as a receptacle for fresh flowers or trinkets.

Also slated for double-duty uses are hand-made boxes sheathed with taut starched lace, which bring the teen-ager her two special gift of pillow-stuffed sachet and matching perfume of a light floral blend. Lace boxes of two different sizes accomodate perfume bottles of different liquid weights.

This elegant plastic jar will be used long after the dusting powder it contains is gone.

Space Saver Gift is Tops

By Kay Sherwood
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Starred for special consideration on your Christmas list this year are friends who must make the most of limited living-space in congested homes and jam-packed apartments. Cueing your choice are the ingenious and practical gifts that double the value of every inch of space.

One of the newest ideas to crash the market is a combination folding screen and dressing room, 68 inches high and 53 inches wide. One side is ornamentally papered or painted to complement room decor. Panels on the other side are fitted with a full-length mirror, clothing, shoe and hat racks and two shelves for cosmetics.

For a one-room dweller, there is a pint-sized electric toaster-cooker which is almost a kitchen stove in minature. The double-decker stove has a single heating unit on top to cook snacks or nedish meals, while bread or sandwiches are toasted on the sliding rack underneath the unit. The tiny cooker is insulated to protect table surface from heat.

Another mighty midget for cramped quarters is a portable electric washing machine that weighs only 18 pounds but launders duds as clean as its bulkier and bigger sisters. The removable washtub holds four and a half gallons of water and fits into an oscillating base which provides the necessary agitating action for thorough cleansing.

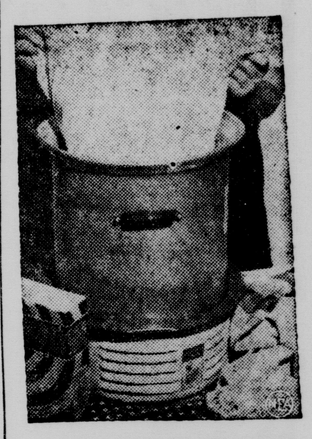

A hearty welcome from space-conscious people will also greet collapsible clothes dryers — some fitted with plastic clothes pins—grooved clothing racks to hand on doors; aluminum roll-away chests; fold-away irons; or a clothes tree that expands to hold a wardrobe of togs when the need arises.

Unique Christmas gift for friends living in cramped quarters is the dressing table-screen, above. Front is papered to match room; back is fitted with mirror, racks and shelves usually found in spacious dressing alcoves in many-roomed homes.

Tiny stove, above, has hot plate to cook snacks and a rack for toast. Midget washing machine, below, does thorough cleaning job on duds. Both will please people with no space to waste.

Gifts Teen-Agers Can Make

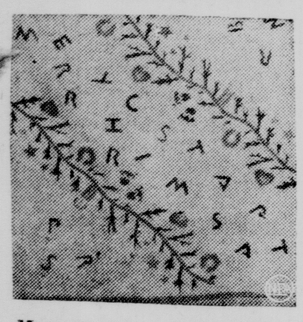

A hand painted textile Christmas gift which carries a personal message to a friend is a gracious way to stretch a slim budget. Rosmarie Berger, New York design student, right, shows how easy it is to stencil a colorful design on a scarf intended for a teen ager.

By Kay Sherwood
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Armed with a box of textile paints and some fabric, teen-agers struggling to stretch a short budget over a long Christmas list can solve their dilemma with colorful hand-painted textile gifts. So can moms and older sisters.

Ready with advice on how to proceed is textile-design student Rosmarie Berger. Her hand-painted designs and scarves, ties, headbands and hankies are rapidly attaining a professional status, as proven by various commercial offers.

Designs which salute a friend's foibles are the best bell-ringers with the younger set, says Rosmarie. "For example, a handkerchief for an artistic friend might carry a palette and brush motif in the corner. Old school ties for campus athletes can bow to their sport's interest—stick figures of football, track or basketball players are effective and easy to do. To co-eds give scarves painted with nicknames, initials, college motifs or splashy seasonal greetings." Table place-mats, bridge sets, and napkins are fine for older women on your list, she says.

Merry Christmas boldly painted on a scarf is a splashy way to send your greetings.

Best materials to work with, according to Rosmarie, are cotton, linen, brushed rayon and heavy silk—the latter she salvages from her mother's scrap-bag, and fringes it to make luxurious scarves.

Before you open the paint jars, says Rosmarie, figure out your design on paper with pencil or crayon. Keep it simple. Decide exactly how you will place it on the material.

Next, trace your design on heavy waxed stencil paper and cut it out neatly with a razor blade or a stencil-cutter. Thumb-tack material to a drawing board. Mix paints to stiff consistency. Don't overload brush with paint. Put stencil on fabric and fill in with color. If you are using a multicolor design, let one color dry before applying a second.

After fabric is painted, leave it alone to dry for 24 hours. Then press on both sides with a hot iron, first over a damp cloth, then over a dry one.

Should your gift be soiled from handling, it can be washed before it's wrapped, because colors don't run, according to Rosmarie.

Hobby interests are source for motifs painted on ties, hankie and headband, above.

Movie Stars Have Very Little Privacy

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30—(AP)—Linda Darnell was sitting in her dressing room, a tiny cubicle loaded with costly flowers in varying stages of wilt, putting on and painting artificial fingernails. Hers are very short.

I don't know why we started talking about the hardships—that's the word—of stardom, but Linda wound up on the subject of the ownership the public feels for its movie stars.

She said she used to shop at an expensive Wilshire boulevard store. Now she has to go there after hours because:

"Women, some of whom should know better, would look at a dress I was thinking of buying and say, 'Look at that color. She would wear a loud thing like that!' or, if the dress cost more than $85 they'd say, 'Throwing her money away! Thinks she has to put all she makes on her back!' If the dress cost less than $85, they'd say, 'Well-l-l, of all the cheap things! You'd think she'd have better taste.' And right to my face, too.

Paid For That

"Or they'd come up to me at a counter and look right into my eyes and at my face and say, 'Humph, some complexion!' or, 'Brown eyes. I thought they were blue.' Now I have to have a salesgirl wait for me so I can shop after the store closes."

I wanted to suggest that a movie star gets a thousand or two a week partly because of such annoyances, but I didn't.

It's just as bad at home. Linda lives in an apartment since the breakup of her marriage to Peverell Marley. Neighbors with an "eligible son," and Linda said that with a very wry face, ask her to dinner frequently.

"I am tired when I get home and I don't want to see anyone. I just want a scotch and soda and dinner and bed. People seem to think I should be delighted to eat with them!"

Vacations A Problem

Vacations are a problem. Linda went to Santa Fe, N. M., with a girl friend and, even though her hair is dyed blonde (for the role of Amber in the picture of the same name) and she wore no make-up but bright red lipstick, she was mobbed immediately. She went shopping only during school hours so the kiddies couldn't get underfoot. But there was a man who was most persistent.

"He wanted to buy me drinks and dinners and he wouldn't take a 'no.' He was a big shot who wanted to show off, but he nearly ruined my trip.

"A woman called at 8:00 one morning—at 8:00, mind you—to say, and she tittered while saying it, that part of her initiation into a club was to bring me to the club that day.

"I said, 'Look, Mrs. —— (she imitated the icy tone in which she spoke) I will not make an appearance at your club under any circumstances. I have no clothes, I am here for a rest and I don't like clubs. And I don't like calls at 8 in the morning."

Star Was Bitter

Linda was pretty bitter about the whole thing and I again was on the verge of saying that three or four thousand a week was pretty good dough. But I didn't.

"Those teen agers get me down," she went on after I suggested that rumors of new romances must get mighty irksome.

"In Santa Fe a bunch of bobby soxers caught up with me in a store and said, 'You're supposed to be here with a girl friend, but we heard Frankie Sinatra is here, too. Is it true that you're here together?"

"Well ——! Can you beat that? I said, 'No, it is not true. I have never met Mr. Sinatra and I am not responsible for any effect on his marriage, if that's what's on your minds.'

"The worst of it is, there's no privacy in this business. Everything you do is subject to public scrutiny. Do you think I can go into a bar and order a scotch, the only thing I can drink? People throw up their hands in horror."

Part of the Business

Many stars have told me that fan adoration—and the attendant annoyances—is part of the business and most feel they are handsomely reimbursed through the fans' dollars at the box office for putting up with it, I had to tell Linda that for five or six thousand a week I thought I could stand quite a bit.

She emphatically did not agree.

"I'll let you in on something, brother: I'll take less money."

Pretty Hand-Sewn Gifts

Closing up gaps in her Christm as list, this knitter finishes bed-jacket which matches the pair of foot-warmers on the floor. On the table are a sequin-spangled hood and set of ballet slippers. evening bag and headband for g lam r girls: a tiny playsuit for baby: a child's bonnet and gloves and Argyle socks for a lucky man

By Epsie Kinard

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Needleworked or hand-sewn lovlies represent the luxury of rarity in a machine age and in a country of mass production. That's why you can thriftily fill in the gaps of a Christmas list with almost fabulous gifts, if you make them yourself.

That's why in a year of shortages and high-priced merchandise the needlework counters are scenes of big booms, fashionable pattern books are thumbed ragged, and buyers who anticipated all of this and laid in ample supplies look and act smug.

Knitters are tackling everything from Argyle socks to sweaters that are headed for the smart ski-trails, the buyers report. Needles are devouring yarn by the box to make infants' sun-suits, bed jackets and boots, bonnets and gloves, and ballet slippers for grown-ups. When the knitter's last thread is snipped, out comes her saucerful of silver bird sequins that light up Cinderella hoods, headbands and evening bags for the glamor gals on her list.

Crochet addicts, looking for new fashion fields in which to triumph, are making accessories overlaid to the hilt with gilt thread and jeweled touches. Gifts for good little girls and boys — woolly - warm creepers, leggings and bright washable toys — are as easily coaxed out of a ball of cotton.

Cross-stitching is in for the biggest boom in years. Needles lying idle during the war years for lack of materials can fly again into stamped patterns, for making rugs and footstool pads, because selective designs are on counters again. Wooden footstools for completing a gift of cross-stitching are back in a choice of distinctive designs.

Aiding women to make a little look like a lot, local sewing centers teach tricks of converting remnants or sewing-box scraps into pert hostess aprons, skating helmets for children or shoe bags for travelers, which can be labeled as such by embroidery or personalized for the lucky lady on a list with needleworked monograms or initials.

French Look Forward to Normal Yule

By Joseph E. Dynan

PARIS—Frenchmen will be able to celebrate Christmas this year in something more like the traditional manner, according to current market and food conditions

Foodstuffs have bee nrelatively plentiful throughout the summer and autumn. Hundreds of restaurants have reopened in the Paris area, many of them serving excellent meals at moderate prices. Even swank black market restaurants which once charged at least 1500 francs a meal are now demanding between 500 and 1000 francs.

Shop windows which at liberation were either empty or filled with unsalable samples are now well stocked with dresses, suits, shirts, children's clothing and toys. Most of the prices are still high, but goods are available—an encouraging advance over last Christmas.

The American military establishment in France is not thinking about Christmas, at least not yet. According to present plans, nall but a very few of them will be out of France by then, some of them home, but most of them transferred into Germany.

Under the present schedule, the Army's western base section will close December first. Remaining installations at Marseilles, Rheims and LeHavre are due to be closed before then. Graves Regisrtation Air Transportation Command, and a few other special units are about all that will remain to observe Christmas here.

Christmas Sugarplums

Whether it's for the family to munch in hungry holiday moments—or to give as welcome presents to friends—cookies be long to the Christmas season.

There's a lot to be done at this time of year, though, and easy-to-make cookies appeal strongly to Mom, with her tight-packed schedule. The newly developed "saucepan" method for making molasses cookies will prove a boon. A saucepan replaces the mixing bowl. It's used to melt the shortening—and for mixing the ingredients, too. Use the same measuring cup (without washing) to measure first the shortening, then the molasses (it slips out of a greased cup so easily). Then measure the liquid without washing the cup—saves a lot of dishwashing. All the following recipes can be made this same way.

Tutti Fruitti Crisps

- 1 cup shortening
- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1½ teaspons baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup light molasses
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 cup nutmeats
- ¾ cup combined citron, orange peel and lemon peel

Melt shortening in 3 or 4-quart saucepan over very low fire. Remove from fire and let cool. Mix and sift flour, soda, salt and spices. Add molasses and unbeaten egg to cooled shortening and mix well. Add dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Combine raisins, nutmeats, citron, orange and lemon peel and put through food chooper, using the fine blade. Stir them into batter. Drop by heaping teaspoonfuls, 2 inches apart, on greased cookie sheet. Bake in hot oven (425°) 10-15 mins., or until brown. Makes about 60 cookies.

Drop Cookies

- ¾ cup shortening
- 2¼ cups sifted flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup light molasses
- 2 eggs, unbeaten
- ½ teaspoon lemon extract
- ½ cup milk
- 1 cup raisins, chopped

Melt shortening in 3 or 4-quart saucepan over very low fire. Remove from fire and cool. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add molasses, unbeaten eggs and lemon extract to cooled shortening and mix well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk; mix well after each addition. Lastly stir in chopped raisins. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheet and bake in hot oven (425°) 8 to 10 mins., or until brown. Makes 4 to 5 doz. cookies.

Gingersnaps

- 1 cup shortening
- 4½ cups sifted flour
- 4 teaspoons ginger
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup light molasses
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- ½ teaspoon lemon extract

Melt shortening in 3 or 4-quart saucepan over very low fire. Remove from fire and cool. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add molasses, unbeaten egg and lemon extract to cooled shortening. Mix well. Add sifted dry ingredients and stir until smooth. Chill dough until firm enough to roll. Roll about ⅛-inch thick, cut and bake on a greased cookie sheet at 375° 12 to 15 mins., or until brown. Makes about 5 doz. 2½-inch cookies.

It's Easy to Sew These Jolly Toys

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A woman claiming no talent for needlework can become Santa's helper this Christmas and fill socks with her own clever handiwork, if she'll start now to make some of the popular playthings which wow the young fry.

Simplified patterns make it easy to duplicate many of Toyland's brightest gimmicks at only a trifling cost. There's even a pattern to chart every step of your way in building and furnishing a doll house. Here's one project you can undertake and shrug your shoulders at shortages. A grocery carton yields sturdy building materials. A cardboard shirt prop makes scaled-to-size furniture, and odds and ends salvaged from scrap boxes take care of the decor.

Any need to speed up production in your own Toyland is met by braiding yarn which makes intriguing dolls, like Topsy and Eva. Tiny pinafores which clothe the rollicking pair can be run up in jig time, and threading hair and making faces for these dolls can be counted out as fun.

It takes only a few evenings and a little outlay of skill to hook up a French poodle with a fast loop stitch for your favorite little guy. Or to make and stuff a sleeping doll with goldilocks wrought of yellow yarn.

Polly Pigtail's family of dolls will be one richer for your gift of a going-to-bed urchin that's easy to make. What will make Polly wide-eyed are her doll's braids, its yawning red mouth and the flannel pajamas which copy her own.

As enchanting as a real bride's are wedding gowns for dolls, complete with veils, which take only odds and ends from the remnant counter to make.

Bonnets to make little girls look more bewitching make gifts that compete with toys. New double-ruffled charmers are simple enough for amateurs with the crochet hook to tackle.

Able also to compete with toys for the favor of a growing-up girl are bed linen sets for her own little room, embroidered and appliqued with nursery motifs. There are full-sized transfers and color charts for the needlework which elevates the importance of such gifts.

NOTE: To obtain patterns for any of the toys shown, send 15 cents plus one cent postage for each pattern desired, together with the numbers of patterns, your name and address to:

Christmas Shoppers Have Wide Choice of Gifts

By Dorothy Carew

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—(AP)—The greatest variety of Christmas gifts since pre-war days is piling up in the nation's retail stores in anticipation of the biggest holiday season on record.

"It will be an expensive Christmas—but there still is money around and people seem willing to spend it," said Carl F. Gamer, president of the Association of buying offices.

Most estimates agree that Christmas sales volume will run from 20 to 25 per cent ahead of last year's record buying spree when the total of retail sales for the final t e months was more than $22,794,000,000.

"We are looking forward to the biggest holiday season in the history of retailing," Gamer said.

To the average family this Yuletide will mark the return of many traditional gifts missing during the war years.

Some Gifts Available

A shirt for father, a sled for the children, and th loveliest of lingerie for mother are likely to turn up under the Christmas tree for the first time in many years.

"Many wanted items in sporting goods, toys, radios, housewares and appliances are available this year after having been missing from our stocks for several years," said Fred Lazarus, Jr., president of Federated Department Stores.

Allotments are ample, he said, in art merchandise, bags, gloves, costume and fine jewelry and table linen.

But shopping early is the surest way to get all the items on your gift list, retailers warned. Supplies in many categories are limited and demand is at a peak.

Bicycles, for instance, are sold as quickly as they are received by stores; there are not enough golf clubs and ice skates to go around; and nylon hosiery is expected to grow progressively scarcer as the holiday draws near. A new car still ranks among improbabilities.

Broader Range

But the shopper has a broader range of alternatives this year. There are electric blankets and radois, lambs aind toasters, more and better toys than a year ago, and a variety of house furnishings and accessories.

The National Conference of Business Paper Editors, in a survey of the Christmas gift supply, summed up the outlook this way:

Sporting Goods—Limited supplies in almost all categories except tennis racquets and balls, which are plentiful.

Toys—Electric trains expected to be short despite substantial production, because of pentup demand; bicycles and tricycles, demand far ahead of record production; better quality dolls and more of them; more plastic tops than ever; record output of light steel toys; shortages of rubber dolls, animals and balls.

Radios—Plenty of table models, but few console types because of cabinet wood shortages; prices about 15 per cent over pre-war; some combination radio-record players.

Furniture

Furniture — Basic prices short because of lumber situation, but plenty of incidental prices. Better supply than last year of upholstered furniture in higher price ranges.

Home Furnishings—Wool rugs coming through better but still limited as to design and quality. Lamps more plentiful than last year, particularly in moderate price brackets; better value for less money in decorative accessories; decorative fabrics in better supply, but selections limited.

Appliances — Good supplies of electric irons, vacuum cleaners, toasters; limited number of mixers, juicers and other types needing fractional horsepower motors; refrigerators and washers short; ranges in fairly good supply.

China and Glassware—Dinnerware and stemware still short, but better supplies of incidental prices.

Silverware

Silverware — Some standard place settings, but no iced tea spoons, oyster forks, gravy ladles and other incidental pieces. Sterling in better supply than plated ware.

Luggage and Leather Goods—Leather luggage short and prices up! canvas also in short supply. Leather handbags scarce and prices up. Cloth handbags plentiful at high prices—supply at $7.50 to $10 retail is inadequate.

Photographic Supplies — Cameras, better than last year, but still short; enlargers more plentiful; projectors and other accessories still short; film output at all-time high but still inadequate to meet demand.

Toiletries—Purchases by department stores said to be about 10 per cent below last year.

Jewelry—Abundance of costume and novelty types, adequate supply of precious items such as gold and diamond jewelry, and probably a slightly larger quantity of watches than a year ago, particularly in American-made brands.

Women's Garments

Lingerie — Popular-priced lingerie increasingly short as Christmas nears; low-priced and more expensive types in better supply. Some silk lingerie at very high prices.

Men's Shirts—Pretty good supply with white shirts on the increase; pajamas still scarce.

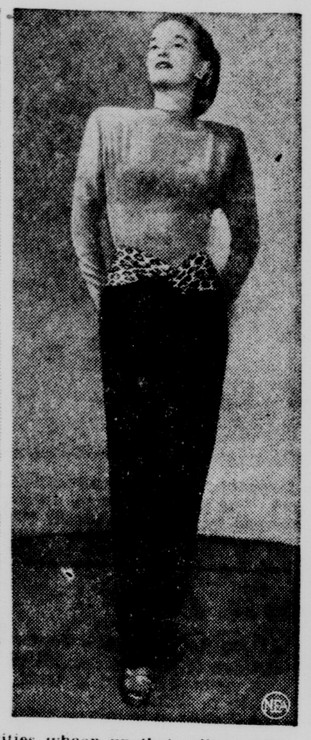

Sheets and Towels—Few fancy gift sets; those available are principally in higher price brackets; guests and novelty towels in good supply.

Tablecloths — Print cloths of moderate to higher priced types easier; rayons and cotton damask tight; American lace scarce, and Irish linens in small amounts.

Mark Twain refused to invest money in Alexander Graham Bell's telephone.

Styles Reflect Festive Mood

Imports Add Global Note to Christmas Gift Lists This Year

Imports will add an international flavor to gifts under the Christmas tree this year. The lucky lady, above, admires a delicately engraved Swedish crystal vase. Near her are more treasures from the world's master craftsmen: rare Royal Copenhagen porcelain lamp from Denmark; soft leather gloves, petit point bag, and sequinned scarf from France; fine Madeira linen luncheon set; East Indian beaded bag and Italian silk umbrella.

Rare treasure is this satiny silver wine pitcher, above, handmade by Danish craftsman, Frantz Hingelberg.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Hitting foreign trails again in search of gifts to add international flavor to his pack, Santa's yield promises U. S. connoisseurs a limited but choice selection of rare-quality treasures created by master craftsmen of Europe and the Orient.

What will keep cherished imports—Swedish crystal, silver and china from Denmark and England, embroidered Irish linens, French and Italian handcrafts, for example—in a luxury gift class by themselves are limited shipments and figures on price-tage which will provoke an incredulous "whew." Quality of these rare treasures, according to importers, is undimmed by their war time retirement.

A list of these international travelers reads like a United Nations roll call. Fabulous emissaries from Sweden are heavy, water-clear crystal vases, decanters, glasses, ashtrays and candlesticks in starkly simple shapes, sometimes embellished with intricate engraved designs.

From Denmark comes exquisite Royal Copenhagen porcelain. The charming Copenhagen peasant figurines, valued as museum pieces, are done up in their traditional subtle shades of blue, green, gray and tan as bases for rare lamps. World-renowned Danish silver introduces a new craftsman, Frantz Hingelberg, to this country. Hingelberg, noted in Europe before the war, sends in his first collection to this country hand made pieces of flatware and hollow ware rubbed to a satiny soft luster.

The great English potteries are doing their bit to supply Christmas surprises for U. S. collectors. Besides their expensive chinawares, some of the potteries are shipping moderately priced bright patterned earthenware luncheon services which should please a holiday bride.

Lucky the lady who has her

Imported from China, this heavy linen cloth and napkins with cut out design make a luxurious gift for a lady on the list.

household linen supply replenished by the luxurious hand-embroidered imported linens. Irish linen yard goods shipped to China before the war and worked there by skilled Chinese needlewomen will turn up on tables here in embroidered tablecloths and napkins as rich and creamy-looking as a Guernsey bossie's blue ribbon best. Famed Madeira linens will resume theeir enemies in the household linen closet.

The elegance of fine gloves, rare petit point and laces from France; colored silks, leathers and gay pottery from Italy; enameled British-Indian brass are also ready to spice this second post-war Christmas with an international flavor.

Festive Board

By NEA Service

Clever use of everyday materials can turn your Thanksgiving dinner table into a festive setting that plays up the gay spirit of the harvest holiday as effectively as fine damask cloths and gleaming silver which you may not have.

Your vegetable bin will yield the makings of a symbolic centerpiece if you'll copy the tricks of Carole Stupell, swank Manhattan decorator. Her first step is to roll up a straw mat to make a horn of plenty. In the middle of it, goes a plump head of green cabbage with outer leaves curled back over the edge of the horn Next, it's ringed with a shining harvest of onions, carrots and potatoes intertwined with autumn leaves of brilliant hue.

If your dining table is rectangular, you can arrange your cornucopia in the corner instead of the center of the table as Miss Stupell does. Going along with her all the way, it takes no time at all to make unique place card holders from a small cluster of grapes, either real or fake.

Green table mats with loops for napkins attached — you could improvise by braiding loops of yarn or ribbon to match your mats and tacking them in place —and corn yellow napkins splash more color in this setting. Bright pottery plates and green ceramic cabbage soup bowls which echo the colors in center setting complete this lively invitation to dinner.

Fancy Choifs for Gala Parties

Coiffures dress up for holiday festivities. In the formal hair-do, left, long hair is draped in three strands across the back of the head. The elegant chignon, center, is designed for hair of average length. Feather bobs can be transformed into the romantically curled coiffure, right.

Exciting Gifts Slated for Homes

Thrilling Christmas gift for a housewife is this post-war developed "jet-propelled" dishwashing machine that cleans up dinner dishes in five minutes. Water pressure supplies the power.

By Kay Sherwood
NEA Staff Writer

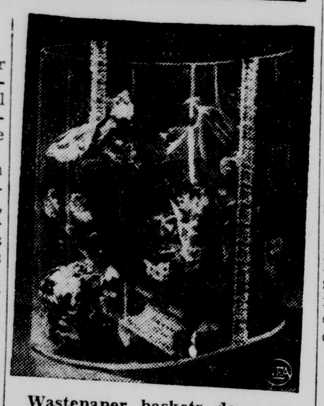

NEW YORK —(NEA)—Postwar wonders for the home are so exciting that they'll need no tinsel wrappings and red bows to glamorize their presence under the Christmas tree.

Streamlined and gleaming, an aluminum and white enamel "jet-propelled" dish-washing machine, for instance, is a Santa Claus answer to housewives' prayers. This motorless marvel, which operates on pressure from the household water supply, cleans up dinner service for four in less than five minutes. Hydraulic action raises and lowers the wire tray which holds the dishes. When the top is closed and dishes are ready to be washed, a flick of a lever sends hot water from eight jets spurting over the dishes, and the water pressure causes the tray to revolve through the foamy suds for complete cleansing.

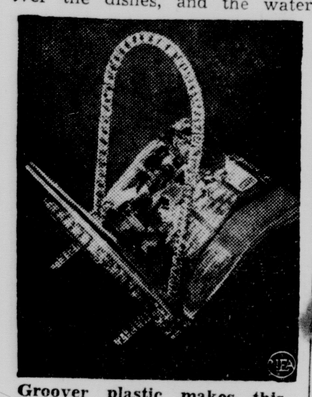

A postwar boon to make eyes pop on Christmas morning is a built-in clock that will wake you up in the morning with sweet music and simultaneously start the breakfast coffee percolating. Secret of this amazing performance is a timing device that can be set so as automatically to switch the radio on or off and control appliances plugged into a built-in double outlet.

Sparkling plastics magically transform drab household accessories into shiningly beautiful gifts worthy of the postwar era. Transparent mailboxes reveal at a glance what the postman has brought and serve as decorative pick-me-ups for entrance doorways. Clear or jewel-toned plastic glamorizes the pedestrian function of wastepaper baskets. These are teamed with grooved plastic magazine racks to make stunning ensembles.

Offering further proof of thrilling postwar developments for the home are mothproof, washable synthetic fabric rugs that faithfully reproduce lustrous designs of fabulous orientals at much less cost.

Wastepaper baskets done up in clear or jewel-toned plexiglass make glamorous Christmas gifts for any home.

Groover plastic makes this magazine rack a sparkling accessory for women who like to have their reading handy.

Gift to brighten the postwar kitchen is this built-in radio with clock-timer device to switch music and plugged-in appliances on or off.

Letters show plainly in this transparent lucite mailbox, a decorative Christmas present for the home-owner.

Turkey Cutlets

Steaks cut from ½ to 1 inch thick from the breast of a large young turkey can be cooked on top of the stove. Before cooking, season with salt and pepper, and roll in flour or dip in egg and crumbs. Brown in about ½ inch fat, cover, and steam until tender. Or brown in ¼ inch fat, then add 1 or 2 tablespoons of water, before covering and steaming. Cooking will take about 30 to 45 minutes, depending on the thickness of the steaks. Drain steaks on absorbent paper and serve with cream gravy.

Most Popular Dead Man

Lenin, Soviet Russia's former dictator, is probably the most popular dead man in the world. His huge black and red marble mausoleum in Red Square, Moscow, is visited daily by 5,000 persons.

More than one-half of the world's 270,000,000 English-speaking peoples are Americans.

Christmas Card Etiquet

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK — Besides the rule of etiquet which says that a first-class friend deserves first-class mail, there are other social amenities that apply to the sending of Christmas cards. Now that the time is rolling around again to take pen in hand, let's review the other rules.

2. If he's a business acquaintance, send the card to his office. The exception is that when you know the Missus too, send the card to both at their home address.

3. All married couples to whom you send cards are addressed as Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So, unless the husband has an official, professional or religious title. Where that's the case, his title replaces the Mister.

4. If you and your husband's names are printed or engraved on cards, you sign yourselves conventionally as "Mr. and Mrs. Jim Whoosits." But if signatures are ink-written, "Jim and Barbara" or "Jim and Barbara Whoosits" is the rule.

5. The children of a family to whom you send cards also rate a listing on the envelope when you mail a card to their ma and pa. The rule is to write children's names right after their mom's in the order of their age, starting off with the eldest. On a formal card, this is the way it should be written; 'Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jones, Jim Jr., and Helen." If the card is informally sent, the address might be: "The Joneses, Jim, Barbara, Jim Jr., and Helen."

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeature Writer

You can send a Christmas card to your baker, grocer and tailor—and don't forget the butcher—even if you don't know 'em personally:

Yuletide is a time when you can open your heart and express heartfelt wishes to intimate friends, relatives and tradespeople alike:

But be sure you know how to address your cards. You wouldn't, for instance, sign "Ann" to the baker's card — unless you were family friends.

It is best form to address one Christmas card to a husband and wife, and seperate cards to other members of the household, but you can send one card to a family providing you write all the names separately on the envelope.

When children's names are added to the signature of the card it is best to say John, Ann and Baby, making dad the head of the household instead of "Ann, John and Baby."

Of course, there is no strict rule that husband must sign first when both names appear on a card. Usually whoever signs the card will sign the other name first as a matter of courtesy.

You may address Christmas cards to both the husband and wife, even though you know only one of them. The proper form in the case of the fellow-worker, however, is to send the card to the office, especially if it is a woman who uses her maiden name in business.

But some people feel it is best to address the card of a business acquaintance to Mr. and Mrs. (at home) even though you know only Mr. or Mrs.

Remember to address a card to a widow with the same formal name that she used when her husband was living: "Mrs. John Fieldstone Mayberry." On the other hand, a divorcee would be addressed as "Mrs. Jones Patterson," using her family surname in place of her husband's first name.

Informal cards can be signed intimately, like "Love from John and Ann and the Four Little Smiths." They can be signed in colored ink to match the wording if you like.

Whenever possible try to use the name in full instead of initials; do not abbreviate the names of streets and cities.

Some people enjoy making their own cards and if you do not have too large a list, homemade cards will be as welcome and acceptable to your friends as the fanciest printed or engraved ones. But if you have a long list, don't attempt a laborious job of painting or drawing your cards. It can be a tedious task unless you find a simple method with linoleum block or another easy gadget.

To help the mailman, mail early, be sure you have the proper address and the correct postage. Christmas cards may be sent by third class mail (if desired) for 1½ cents postage for each two ounces. The envelope must, however, be unsealed, and the flap inserted inside the envelope. It the envelope is sealed, first class postage must be paid.

Metal and Plastic Toys Fill Santa's Pack

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Bulging with deeply missed steel and rubber toys and new playthings of plastic, Santa's pack will be 35 per cent bigger with gifts for good little boys and girls this Christmas than last. In it playthings of peacetime appeal will largely replace the shooting toys and war games of other years.

Despite the increase, even tearful pleas to Santa for popular fun stuff will not be granted unless shoppers shop early, spokesmen for the Toy Guidance Council warn. Demands are apt to be unprecedented because of pent-up desires for war-restricted toys plus the need to give Santa the names of 5,000,000 children who've come of toy-age during the war years.

Early shoppers, however, will find well-rounded lines in volumes that come close to prewar levels, according to the Toy Manufacturers of the USA.

Toyland offers for the first time in four years playthings of rubber, metal and hardwood. There are, to name a few headliners, scale-model road-working equipment—complete with rubber wheels! steel hook-and-ladder trucks with aerial extension ladders; mechanical autos; seacraft; aircraft; wooden moving vans and improved electric trains.

Slated to win wild soprona whees from boys over six and booming bass "By-Joves" from fathers of all ages are new electric trains with engines that whistle, chug, and puff realistic smoke. Smoke comes courtesy of an aspirin-sized pellet which, dropped into the smokestack of the engine, is vaporized by a heat lamp concealed within it.

War-proven plastics make peacetime wonders for Toyland that are destined to turn bathtubs into harbors. Lumarith gives greater range to cruisers and plastic makes lighter hoods for sailboats.

New toys that educate the painless way have the run of the postwar field. That goes for everything from projectors for showing home movies to metal construction sets that teach young engineers their skills early. Music-makers designed to teach and amuse the 2-year-old and up feature a plastic newcomer, an electronic "merry-go-sound" phonograph. This high-fidelity record player, which simulates in design the circus scene of carousel and calliope, plays either a Brahms concerto or "Seven At a Blow" with concert-hall clarity.

Metal toys back in Santa's pack after a wartime absence will include new electric train, top, that puffs realistic smoke; the construction set and movie projector, lower left. Merry-Go-Sound phonograph, upper left, and sea-craft, upper right, are plastic's contribution to new Christmas toys. Babies will get constructive pleasure from new kicking device, center. Roguish Kewpie doll, top center, is smartly dressed to delight fashion-wise little girls. No housing shortage plagues Toyland, where there are plenty of homes like the English manor, lower right.

Among new dolls designed to make little girls happy are many with real hair, moving eyes, magic skin, and realistic "Mama" cries. Many dolls have glamor wardrobes modeled after those worn by smart little girls, and among the stars in this galaxy is the new Rose O'Neil kewpie, smartly outfitted in a smart hat and coat ensemble, which includes colorful rompers, knitted socks and laced booties.

The toy housing world, designed to make grown-ups sigh with envy, include every type of miniature from bungalow to grand suburban-type English houses, carpeted and ready for small-scaled furniture.

The very young are more than well taken care of this year with practically indestructible toys thanks to the use of new plastics which are also in high favor for their safety and cleanliness. Among the new toys which baby will rattle, chew and gaze lovingly at are bright objects which also help him to develop muscles. A new kicking device, patterned after the fashion of a rolling pin, lodges over the sides of his crib, providing fun as well as exercise for developing back and legs.

Imaginative Tricks Make Yule Greens More Festive

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK (NEA)—Add an invisible spray of imagination to the evergreens that you use to decorate your home this Christmas season, and see how much more festive and heart warming the effects will be.

Taking you behind the scenes of her swank shop, Judith Garden, topflight New York stylist, shows you tricks that florists use to glorify greenery. Miss Garden wires leaves and paints 'em gold, used water-proof ribbon on sprays that hang outside of doors, trims trees with flowers, makes snowy little fir trees out of pipe-stem cleaners, and has one sure-fire but simple-to-do trick up her sleeve for glorifying the mistletoe.

All set to listen to and profit from her helpful hints? To turn good old mistletoe, for instance, into a modern courting device, she suggests making a "kissing ring" out of two ribbon-wrapped embroidery hoops of the same size. She uses velvet ribbon, color-matched to the berry's foliage, inserts one hoop into the other crosswise, and decorates the bottom with streamers of velvet ribbon and a spray of mistletoe. For hanging the "ring" to a doorway or from a chandelier another long streamer is tied to the top of the hoops.

To make a snowy little Christmas tree, which invites jolly Jack Frost into a room without lowering its temperature, use pipe stem cleaners, which you can buy by the yard. Planting your tree in a pot—Miss Garden favors a white jardiniere—plunge a slender stick into the dirt. Now wire on "branches" of pipe-stem cleaners, cut in graduated lengths, to build a tapering tree. Trim with ribbon bows, tiny pine cones or Christmas-tree balls.

The "kissing ring" hung in the doorway above is made of two embroidery hoops, wrapped and tied with ribbon, decorated with mistletoe aand streamers.

You can make a Christmas tree look as spectacular as the winning exhibit in a flower show, says Miss Garden, if you'll trim it with red and white carnations. Begging for this fancy dress is the chubby little juniper tree, around which alternating rows of red and white carnations can be easily wired on in a spiraling effect, if you'll begin at the top.

Using spiraling rows of red and white carnations, wired to a Christmas tree, Elaine Rost, CBS star, shows how flowers can be used to glorify the juniper.

If you use fresh carnations, Miss Garden's tip for keeping them fresh is to wire on tiny florist tubes, and fill with water. You can hope to keep fresh for Christmas day fresh flowers that are wired directly to the tree, if you'll keep their little faces damp overnight with pieces of wet cotton.

Want to go gala with door or mantle sprays? To turn a spray of magnolia leaves into a shower of gold, Judith Garden individually wires each leaf—using 24-gauge florist wire in 18-inch pieces—and fastens together to make the desired shape. To decorate she makes dahlia-like blossoms of split pine cones, flattened out for better imitation of the flower, and wires these onto the spray to fill in the gaps. To gild, gold paint is brushed over every leaf and "flower," and for more dazzle the pine cones are outlined with silvery dust, sprinkled on while the paint is still wet.

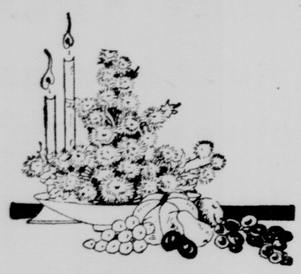

Magnolia leaves wired to make a spray, then glamorized with gold paint and silver dust, make an eye-catching Yuletide decoration for door or mantlepiece.

For your outdoor spray that shouts "Merry Christmas" to passersby, use, as Miss Garden does, an assortment of evergreens—pine, cedar, juniper, or others of your choice—and decorate with pine cones, painted white. Tie with a whopping big bow and streamers of water-proof red ribbon.

Many birds that nest in North America start their return trip to South and Central America early in July.

Rust, it is claimed, has claimed 40 per cent of all the 2,000,000,000 tons of pig iron produced in the last one-half century.

Tips To Toy Buyers

By Dorothy Roe
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Selection of the right toy for the right age is one of the most important duties of pinch-hitting Santas. There is nothing so disappointing to a bright lad of 12, for instance, as to unwrap a gray Christmas package and find a stuffed teddy bear—or for a three-year-old to receive a complicated chemistry set, far too advanced for his years.

Most toy departments nowadays have toys grouped as to age groups and interests, and a competent salesperson usually is able to give sound advice.

Gift buying for children requires special care, says the Toy Guidance Council, which attempts to provide adequate information on appropriate toys to stores throughout the country. If you are buying for children other than your own, ask their parents what you can get that will not duplicate their other gifts.

Because a child's attention span is short, the council suggests a planned selection of toys that provide a variety of play activities—something for play alone, something for group play, something that presents a creative challenge, something that provides outdoor exercise.

For the littlest children, push and pull toys are always good, as are the new alphabet blocks in gay colors with rounded corners. Rubber toys also are back on the market this year.

For any little girl between the ages of four and ten, a dollhouse is a constant delight. There are all kinds and sizes available this year. Dollhouse furniture can be added from time to time.

All boys love trains, and this year electric trains are once more available—some that puff smoke. Metal construction sets and elaborate chemistry sets also are popular with older boys.

There are games for all ages and musical toys of various kinds that also are good for both boys and girls of all age groups; for the toddlers, metal xylophones, for the older children, harmonicas or piccolos.

A little care in toy selection will pay dividends in enjoyment.

CALL ME LIZ

by Rene Ayerson Mart

THE STORY: Red McFan, army pilot, comes home with a chestful of ribbons and a cocky swagger. He visits the varnish plant where he worked before the war as a laboratory helper. Old Man Condon, the big boss, greets him warmly. Red had saved his son's life in combat. Condon offers Red a chance to finish school and a part-time job meanwhile. Red accepts. Russ Condon asks his girl-friend, Elise Varney, to find a date for Red.

THE sign in the lobby said REGISTRATION. It pointed to the right.

Red followed the arrow into a big room cut in half by a counter beyond which a group of girls worked at desks, and the first half of which was jammed with boys in uniform, boys in slacks and sport jackets, boys in mismated suits and a few bobby-socked girls. Red, still wearing his uniform, crowded his way through the doorway and joined the throng.

He took one disgruntled look around the room and latched onto the end of a long line which was slowly moving toward the counter. After 45 minutes he reached the counter and the bespectacled girl behind it asked smartly: "How much university work have you had?"

"None," Red said.

"I'm sorry, you'll have to get in that line over there then. That's freshman registration."

Again Red went through the crawling process. When he reached the counter this time another girl gave him a half dozen typewritten sheets of questions to be filled out and directed him to a desk where pen and ink were available.

Red sweated through the papers, his fresh collar wilting, his uniform becoming hot and heavy, his patience wearing thin.

And then he noticed the girls. A crowd of them at the next table. Half a dozen plain-faced serious ones. Half a dozen more not so plain but absorbed in the papers they were filling out. And a doll-faced blonde. The girls were young, too. Seventeen and eighteen. But girls were girls. Maybe college wouldn't be so hard to take after all.

RED waited until the blonde girl looked up and he caught her eye. She tilted her pretty nose for a minute and studied him and then her eye fell on the row of ribbons on his chest and she smiled back at him. She turned to the girls beside her and said something and they all turned and looked at his combat ribbons. Red felt better.

He finished filling in the information blanks, handed them in to the girl at the counter and received some papers to fill out concerning his eligibility under the GI Bill of Rights.

At least he shouldn't have any difficulty about that, Red thought grimly. He put down the facts. When he had finished he was hungry and tired and the cute blonde had disappeared. Red strode disgustedly across the campus toward a lunch room.

It was overcrowded, too, and the waitress informed him that there was no beer and he had to settle for a soggy hamburger and a muddy cup of coffee. A juke box was pouring out Cab Calloway's latest recording and the shrill chatter of girls' voices and raucous young male laughter filled the hot stale room.

Suddenly Red experienced what was for him an entirely new feeling. He felt for the first time that nervous fear of crowds which affects many servicemen returning from combat.

He got up abruptly and left his coffee untouched and pushed his way through to the door.

"What the devil?" he thought in sudden panic. "Is it going to get me? Now?"

He walked for an hour. Hurrying himself. Trying to sweat the absurd fear out of his system.

Suddenly Red stopped in his tracks and began to laugh out loud. He was tired—that was all. Holy cow—one day of civilian life and he broke out with combat fatigue!

He looked at his wrist watch. A quarter of two. He was supposed to see an adviser at two about his schedule. He turned back in the direction from which he had come.

HIS adviser, when Red got to him after another wait, proved to be a thin over-worked underinstructor. He began to ask Red hurried questions. It was evident that he was not impressed by Red's uniform and ribbons. Red, to him, was just another GI to be fitted into the already overcrowded university.

He kept on asking Red questions and writing things down on a piece of paper and consulting a small blue-backed book and at last he said: "You'll have to take a rather scrambled schedule this quarter. These last minute registrations are bad. Let's see, Freshman English, first . . ."

"Look here," Red broke in. "I don't want any English. I want as much chemistry as I can get, and math. I've got a job waiting when I get through school, and I want to make it quick."

"Everybody has to take Freshman English," the adviser said primly. "It's required."

He finally handed Red a schedule that called for English, Zoology and American History. Red stared at it. There was not one subject in which he was interested. For a minute his impulse was to chuck the whole thing.

Back in his room he undressed and threw his uniform across a chair. A fat lot of good it and his combat ribbons were going to do him now, he thought sourly. He flung himself down on the bed and thought back over the unsatisfactory day. Suddenly he raised himself on one elbow, looked at his watch and his face brightened.

He'd nearly forgotten. This was Saturday. Russ had a party lined up. A big time. Girls and everything. Whistling, Red sprang off the bed and headed for a shower.

Gifts to Flatter a Man's Fancy

Christmas gifts of games and new sports equipment will be welcomed by men on your list. Twin boxing-glove sets provide fun for father and son. The whole family will enjoy an English ring-toss game, upper left. The two-in-one glove, game belt, or golfball retriever and club-head covers that attach to a golf bag would please a sportsman.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Gifts to rate cheers from the men in your life on Christmas morning will be those that cater to postwar leisure hours, flatter their fancy for gadgets or fill in wardrobe shortages.

It will take careful shopping to turn up such scarce clothing items as shirts and underwear, but manufacturers promise you'll find a dazzling assortment of boldly designed, all-wool sweaters, shirts and socks in fire-alarm colors, and new rakish sports hats of rough finished wool. Bright sleveless sweaters team with lightweight wool shirts in muted blues, yellows, greens, and grays to make gifts that will spike a khaki-weary ex-GI's wardrobe with the color he has been dreaming about.

Postwar synthetic fabrics display their talents in men's clothing with a featherweight waterproof jacket that has a zippered closing. Designed by the Men's Fashion Guild of New York, the jacket packs conveniently into its own envelope that hooks over the belt where it can be anchored between rain storms.

For men reunited with their families after a war-time separation, games the whole family can play by the fireside are the number one choice. To please the Coloful ensemble combining a blue wool shirt and geometric-patterned wool sweater is just the thing for an ex-GI collegian. Rakish sports hat is also new.

Mister there are father-and-son boxing glove sets which include a small pair for Junior, a big pair for Dad. Also Christmas makers for the men are dart games including a new variation of the English ring toss which uses a wooden board and rings instead of darts and miniature bowling pins and balls.

Noteworthy newcomers in gifts for sportsmen are collapsible aluminum golf ball retreivers for fishing wayward balls from water hazards; and numbered golf club head covers that hook securely to the golf bag. More new accessories are lightweight, waterproof game belts with zippered pouch for shells and nylon loops to carry game; floating cork handled boat knives; and a two-in-one glove which combines a capeskin slipon and a removable knitted wool liner.

With travel an important item on his postwar agenda the motorist can better plan his vacation trip with gifts designed for that purpose. Notable newcomers are leather map cases with see-through windows to keep maps visible but clean, and auto compasses that attach to the windshield strip.

For the sophisticated blade, a toiletries gift set which includes talc, after-shave lotion and eau de cologne, comes encased in spun aluminum ice bucket which is ready to replace bottles with cubes.

Featherweight and waterproof this synthetic fabric jacket for the outdoorsman packs into its own envelope, which can be hooked to the belt.

How Much Gravy?

Th quality of well - flavored gravy that can be made from a roasted bird depends on how much juice or stock cooks out of the bird into the pan. With a 10-pound turkey, a reasonable yield of gravy is 3 to 4 cups.
